

CANADA TO BLAME.

England Refuses to Participate In Seal Conference.

OBJECTS TO JAPAN AND RUSSIA.

Offers to Meet the United States Alone. Pressure Brought to Bear on the Stubborn Province, but It Was Unsuccessful—Confirmed in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Inquiry in the state department confirms the announcement from the British foreign office in London that the British government has refused to take part in any conference in which Russian and Japanese delegates participate. Beyond this confirmation the officials of the state department decline to discuss the question, as correspondence is still in progress on the subject. Mr. John W. Foster, ex-secretary of state, who is in charge of the interests of the United States in the Bering sea seal fisheries matter, was asked about the statement that there would be two conferences, one between the United States and Great Britain and the other between the United States, Russia and Japan, declined to discuss this point at the present time.

The British government asserts its willingness to confer with the United States alone, but it insists that Russia and Japan are not interested in the Bering sea seals to a degree entitling them to representation at the conference. The British government does not suggest any date for a conference with the United States, and it is thought probable in London that Great Britain's withdrawal will result in two meetings, one between the United States, Russia and Japan and the other between the United States, Great Britain and Canada.

It cannot be too strongly reiterated that the withdrawal of Great Britain from the Washington conference is due to Canada's insistence, and that until the Canadian officials informed the foreign office here of Canada's objections to meeting Russia and Japan, out of fear of being outvoted, Great Britain fully intended to enter the conference.

Great Britain fully intended to enter the conference with the three other governments.

But for Colonel Hay's representations, the first announcement of Great Britain's unwillingness to take part in the conference would have been final, but the United States ambassador so plainly pointed out the unusual character of Great Britain's change of mind at so late a day that some of the foreign office officials decided to reopen the question and have been endeavoring, but unsuccessfully, to secure Canada's acquiescence.

Sir Julian Pannecote, the British ambassador to the United States, also used his influence in a spirit of friendliness to the United States in efforts to secure the adherence of Great Britain to the original program.

The diplomats in London consider that Great Britain's course was not courteous to Russia and Japan.

Experts who have been investigating the sales of seal skins in London, in order to obtain evidence for the use of the United States at the conference, have been proof that 80 per cent of the skins sold by the Canadian companies are those of female seals and that most of the animals were shot.

SYNOD OF THE WEST.

Seminary Board Elected and Reform Resolutions Adopted.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 7.—When the First Synod of the West convened at the United Presbyterian church an invitation to hold the next meeting at Deer Creek, in the bounds of Allegheny county, was accepted.

The election of members of the board of the Allegheny seminary resulted as follows: Dr. W. H. McMillan, Dr. A. G. Wallace, Rev. Thomas McCance, James W. Grove.

The report of the special committee on national reform was read by J. S. T. Milligan. It contained the following: "We consider the movement to secure a proper religious amendment to the constitution of the United States as of primary and special importance, as the recognition of God as the source of authority is fundamental to the enforcement of authority and law."

"We rejoice that arrangements are being made for the convention in Philadelphia of the friends of the movement."

"We urge our ministers to preach this subject to their congregations and hold meetings to discuss it, and that we send delegates to the convention."

"We recommend the appointment of five members of this court to represent it in the convention, not, however, as a court assuming responsibility."

The report was accepted and adopted.

IMPEACHING WITNESSES:

The Testimony in the Luetgert Trial Becomes More Interesting.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The testimony in the Luetgert trial was more interesting to the general public than it has been at any time for the last two weeks. The dry technical evidence of the experts gave way to impeachment evidence offered by the state against the witnesses for the defense who had stated on the stand that Mrs. Luetgert had been seen in the vicinity of Kenosha, Wis., within a few days after the murder is said to have been committed. Several of those who claimed to have seen the woman around Kenosha fared badly at the hands of their neighbors, and Witness Sholey, the principal witness for the defense on the Kenosha story, had his character torn to shreds. Evidence was introduced to show that Luetgert had not put any grease or chipped bone into his vats for making soap on the night of May 1, as his business partner, William O. Harles, had testified, because it had all been carted away on the morning before. It was also shown that Luetgert had no occasion to make any soap, for when the factory was seized by a deputy sheriff several days after the murder is said to have been committed a great many bars of soap belonging to him were found in the basement of the factory.

DAMAGING TO MRS. ATKINSON.

Strong Testimony Introduced in Trial of the Governor's Wife.

GLENVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 7.—All barriers being removed the trial of Mrs. Atkinson has been resumed. The preliminary proceedings were brief, and a jury was soon empaneled of the representative men of the county and sworn in. The trial opened with the reading of the indictment to the jury by the circuit clerk, Hardman. The indictment charges Mrs. Atkinson and Joshua P. Owens, a prominent farmer, with being jointly engaged in a felonious uttering of certain receipts alleged to be forged, and Owens and Mrs. Atkinson are being tried together. The receipts involved in the transaction, of something over $1,400, and were filed by the state as evidence.

The state claims that these receipts were written and signed in Judge Camden's name, by Mrs. Atkinson, then Mrs. Camden, some years after Judge Camden's death. This last allegation is denied by the defense, although the fact that the receipts are wholly in the handwriting of Mrs. Atkinson, was admitted by her attorneys. Camden Sommers, on whose evidence the indictment was brought, was the first witness examined by the state. His evidence was strong against the accused. He described his discovery of the papers and pointed out to them his reason for his belief that the papers were forged. Letters from Owens to Judge Camden were here introduced as evidence in the case for the purpose of showing the non-payment of the money for which the receipts are supposed to have been given. The cross-examination of the witness was very rigid, but seemed to leave the statements unshaken. The defense, however, intimates that contradictory evidence will in due time be produced. Other state witnesses followed Sommers, each of whom detailed conversations considered damaging to Mrs. Atkinson.

TEMPLE CUP SERIES.

Baltimore Also Took the Third Game From Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The last ball game of the season and the third in the Temple cup series was as dull and uninteresting a contest as has been seen here for many a day. The Baltimore won with ridiculous ease and closed their engagement here by practically exhausting the pitching talent of the Boston nine.

A slight shower came up just as the Boston were ending their half of the eighth inning and the game was called. The score reverting to the seventh inning and cutting off four runs and five hits for the visitors. The score:

Boston	0	3	0
Baltimore	0	4	0
Batteries	Lewis, Klobedanz and Lake; Hoffer and Clarke. Umpires—Emslie and Hurst. Attendance, 5,000.

AN ULTIMATUM TO ENGLAND.

Indian Tribesmen Will Continue to Fight if Peace Offer Is Refused.

PESHAWUR, Oct. 7.—Intelligence received from various points confirms the report that Afridis and the Orakzais will take the initiative if their proposal of settlement is not accepted by the British.

In order to secure combined action they threaten excommunication from Islam of such sections or tribes as make separate terms.

As the crops are now harvested small bodies of tribesmen have begun to move.

Creedon and McCoy Matched.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Dan Creedon and Kid McCoy have signed articles for a finish fight, between Dec. 15 and Dec. 30, and "Honest John" Kelly, on behalf of the Canadian Athletic club, got the attraction with an offer of $7,500.

O'Sullivan Quits Tammany.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—W. J. O'Sullivan, a member of Tammany Hall general committee, has resigned from the organization. He gave his reasons, that the organization has surrendered all claims to true democracy.

FAST TRAIN ROBBED.

Holdup by Bandits In Kansas City Suburbs.

THIRD NEAR THERE IN A YEAR.

The Amount of Plunder Secured Not Yet Known—City and County Officers Sent to the Scene—Occurred Near the Famous Blue Cut.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 7.—Bandits have held up a Chicago and Alton express train at a point less than six miles from Kansas City. The robbery is the third occurring on that railroad within a year, all within 15 miles of this city. The Chicago and St. Louis express was stopped by eight masked men at Evanston, a suburban stopping place just beyond Washington park.

Evanston is about eight miles nearer to Kansas City than Blue Cut, made celebrated by the notorious James gang and which was the scene of two previous robberies on the Chicago and Alton within a year, one on Dec. 23 last, and one on Oct. 23 last. How much booty was secured by the robbers is not known here.

The train was stopped at Evanston siding by the explosion of torpedoes which had been placed on the track. When the conductor and brakeman went out to ascertain the cause of the trouble they were covered with revolvers in the hands of four of the eight road agents. The other four quickly covered the engineer and fireman. The brakemen were compelled to uncouple the baggage and express cars from the passenger coaches. While this was being done one of the robbers busied himself by going through the pockets of Conductor Graves, who was robbed of $22 in coin.

In the meantime the bandits at the head of the train had ordered Engineer Vollette and his fireman to climb down out of their cab. Engineer Vollette hesitated until a pistol ball was sent by his head.

He and the fireman after this persuasion climbed down quickly and two of the robbers immediately took their places. The others of the bandit crowd jumped aboard the baggage and express cars. This part of the train they ran up the track toward Independence, Mo., about a quarter of a mile. There they compelled the frightened express messenger to open the door of his car. The door once open, they dragged the messenger out by the legs, throwing him to the ground and took his gun away from him. The messenger was then compelled to walk back toward the other portion of the train.

After securing complete possession of the engine and the baggage and express cars the bandits placed 24 sticks of dynamite upon the big through safe and then lifted the smaller way-safe up on top of it. They applied the fuse and the match and then evidently waited for the explosion, but for some reason the explosive did not go off, and from subsequent developments it is evident the dynamite had great terrors for the men who were not afraid to run the ordinary risks of train robbing.

It is clear that they were afraid to return to the express car, for, after waiting a few minutes for the expected explosion, they hurriedly left the place, running into the underbrush which skirts the railway in that section.

The trainmen who had been left behind with the passenger coaches politely waited a reasonable length of time for the robbers to complete their work and they then ran ahead to the engine and the two cars.

After some delay, for they, too, were afraid of the dynamite, they succeeded in lifting down the small safe and throwing out the dynamite. The engine was then run back to the rest of the train and coupled on, and after full two hours' delay the express resumed the journey toward St. Louis.

The passengers, especially the ladies, were very much frightened, and when the robbers began shooting at Engineer Vollette, there was a wild scramble in all the coaches. Diamonds and other valuables were hidden in every place conceivable in a passenger coach.

Two Chicago and Alton detectives were on the train. Both were badly scared, and neither of them put in an appearance outside of their coach until it was all over.

General Superintendent W. E. Gray was also on the train. The express messenger was not only roughly handled by the road agents, but was robbed of $31 from his pockets. The passengers made up a purse of $25 and gave it to him.

County Marshal Chiles and several deputies, as well as a squad of city police, left for the scene of the robbery on a special train.

MARINES AT ST. MICHAELS.

Rioting Feared Among the Rough Miners Gathered There.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Oct. 7.—A private letter received from St. Michaels via the cutter Perry from Dutch harbor explains the story published some time ago about an Alaska treasure ship requiring protection by revenue cutters against the possibility of piratical attack. It is not to guard against the pirates that the vessels are needed. Ever since the movement toward Klondyke began the steamers have been dumping all sorts and conditions of men at St. Michaels.

The gathering has been getting worse from month to month and as a result the Rush and Corwin are now at St. Michaels ready to land men at a moment's notice and put a stop to any trouble which might, considering the fierceness of the miners, quickly spread into a riot. The marines will remain at St. Michaels until all possibility of trouble is passed.

More Space For United States.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Major Moses P. Handy, the special United States commissioner to the Paris exposition of 1900, has secured 25 per cent additional space for the American exhibits, making the space of the United States equal to that of other big nations of the world.

Entertained by the President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—President and Mrs. McKinley gave a reception at the White House last night to the foreign guests of the international committee of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, who came here especially for that purpose before attending the coming convention at Buffalo.

Germany Refuses Consul Neumann.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—The German government has refused to recognize Mr. Ferdinand Neumann of Illinois, who was nominated by President McKinley on May 25 to be United States consul at Cologne.

So Foraker Can Speak.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Republican massmeeting to ratify the nomination of General Tracy has been postponed from Friday to Saturday evening next, to enable Senator Foraker of Ohio to reach this city and address the meeting.

Memorial Services to Dow.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The general officers of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union have requested all local unions to hold memorial services for the late General Neal Dow.

Endorse the Chicago Platform.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Democratic county conventions now being held in New York state generally endorse the Chicago platform.

ANNEXATION OF CUBA.

Strong Element in the Island May Demand It.

SPANISH OPPOSE AUTONOMY.

A Prediction Made That When Peace Is Restored They Will Stir Up Another Rebellion—One Faction Will Then Favor Joining United States.

HAVANA, Oct. 7.—A well-known American, who has long resided in Cuba, expresses the opinion that real differences exist among the resident Spaniards as to the desirability of autonomy. He believes it will not prove satisfactory to the radical element among the Spaniards in Cuba. After autonomy has been granted and peace is proclaimed, he believes, the radical element will probably try to promote another insurrection. In that event the conservative element and the producing body of the Spanish population would at once demand annexation to the United States. This view is shared by many resident Spaniards of prominence.

The rumor that Marshal Martinez Campos would probably be reappointed to command in Cuba gave great satisfaction to the native islanders, but the Spaniards openly expressed their disapproval, as they consider that his weakness was the original cause of the revolt. They hold Campos responsible for the extension of the insurrection into Western Cuba.

DEMONSTRATION TO WEYLER.

His Adherents Called and He Made His Usual Bluff.

HAVANA, Oct. 7.—In spite of Captain General Weyler's prohibition a notable demonstration has taken place here in his honor. The bourse was closed, as were also the principal stores and the tobacco and other manufactories. All the main streets were gaily decorated.

The various processions united at Central park and then moved together to the plaza in front of the captain general's palace, where as many as 20,000 people were gathered. Several bands discoursed patriotic music. The plaza and the thoroughfares leading into it were densely crowded.

A number of deputations went to the palace, where they were received by the captain general. According to the official accounts they assured him that it was the desire of all loyal inhabitants of the island that he should continue at the head of the government and carry on the campaign against the insurgents.

Captain General Weyler thanked them and said that in the course of seven months four important provinces had been nearly pacified and he was confident of being able to pacify the two remaining provinces at the proper time, with the 40 battalions ready for the task. He said he expected to be able to pacify Puerto Principe and Santiago de Cuba at an early date, "for the rebels there know me and fear me and will not resist me."

"I would like to please those who are today demonstrating in my honor by remaining in Cuba, but the delicate position in which I have been placed has compelled me today to request the government to dispose of my position in whatever way it may think convenient."

UPHOLDS CLEVELAND'S COURSE.

Sanguilly's Attorney Says Agitation in Congress Hurt His Case.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The celebrated case of Julio Sanguilly is presented in a semi-official form in a pamphlet issued by Sanguilly's counsel here, Jose I. Rodriguez. It tells the story in detail and gives a number of letters passing between Secretary Olney, Senator Sherman, Consul General Lee and the United States minister at Madrid, Mr. Hannis Taylor, not appearing in the state department publications and heretofore unpublished.

As a whole the document upholds the course of President Cleveland and Secretary Olney and points out that the agitation in Sanguilly's behalf in congress served only to prejudice his case.

WEYLER WILL NOT QUIT.

He Cabled to Madrid Offering Government His Services.

MADRID, Oct. 7.—Senor Sagasta, the premier, has received a cable message from Captain General Weyler, who offers his services to the government, and says: "I shall not resign."

At a cabinet council the government decided to grant autonomy to Cuba under the suzerainty of Spain, and to continue the campaign as long as may be necessary.

A Suit For $10,000.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 7.—Suit has been begun by Mayer Weil and M. D. Mandelbaum against the Ft. Wayne and Electric Railway company, Frank De Haas Robison, John J. Shipherd, Charles Hathaway and J. H. Bass on a note for $10,000. It is the first suit growing out of the sensational arrest of J. J. Shipherd for embezzlement.

ANNEXATION OF CUBA.

Strong Element In the Island May Demand It.

SPANISH OPPOSE AUTONOMY.

A Prediction Made That When Peace Is Restored They Will Stir Up Another Rebellion—One Faction Will Then Favor Joining United States.

HAVANA, Oct. 7.—A well-known American, who has long resided in Cuba, expresses the opinion that real differences exist among the resident Spaniards as to the desirability of autonomy. He believes it will not prove satisfactory to the radical element among the Spaniards in Cuba. After autonomy has been granted and peace is proclaimed, he believes, the radical element will probably try to promote another insurrection. In that event the conservative element and the producing body of the Spanish population would at once demand annexation to the United States. This view is shared by many resident Spaniards of prominence.

The rumor that Marshal Martinez Campos would probably be reappointed to command in Cuba gave great satisfaction to the native islanders, but the Spaniards openly expressed their disapproval, as they consider that his weakness was the original cause of the revolt. They hold Campos responsible for the extension of the insurrection into Western Cuba.

DEMONSTRATION TO WEYLER.

His Adherents Called and He Made His Usual Bluff.

HAVANA, Oct. 7.—In spite of Captain General Weyler's prohibition a notable demonstration has taken place here in his honor. The bourse was closed, as were also the principal stores and the tobacco and other manufactories. All the main streets were gaily decorated.

The various processions united at Central park and then moved together to the plaza in front of the captain general's palace, where as many as 20,000 people were gathered. Several bands discoursed patriotic music. The plaza and the thoroughfares leading into it were densely crowded.

A number of deputations went to the palace, where they were received by the captain general. According to the official accounts they assured him that it was the desire of all loyal inhabitants of the island that he should continue at the head of the government and carry on the campaign against the insurgents.

Captain General Weyler thanked them and said that in the course of seven months four important provinces had been nearly pacified and he was confident of being able to pacify the two remaining provinces at the proper time, with the 40 battalions ready for the task. He said he expected to be able to pacify Puerto Principe and Santiago de Cuba at an early date, "for the rebels there know me and fear me and will not resist me."

"I would like to please those who are today demonstrating in my honor by remaining in Cuba, but the delicate position in which I have been placed has compelled me today to request the government to dispose of my position in whatever way it may think convenient."

UPHOLDS CLEVELAND'S COURSE.

Sanguilly's Attorney Says Agitation In Congress Hurt His Case.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The celebrated case of Julio Sanguilly is presented in a semi-official form in a pamphlet issued by Sanguilly's counsel here, Jose I. Rodriguez. It tells the story in detail and gives a number of letters passing between Secretary Olney, Senator Sherman, Consul General Lee and the United States minister at Madrid, Mr. Hannis Taylor, not appearing in the state department publications and heretofore unpublished.

As a whole the document upholds the course of President Cleveland and Secretary Olney and points out that the agitation in Sanguilly's behalf in congress served only to prejudice his case.

WEYLER WILL NOT QUIT.

He Cabled to Madrid Offering Government His Services.

MADRID, Oct. 7.—Senor Sagasta, the premier, has received a cable message from Captain General Weyler, who offers his services to the government, and says: "I shall not resign."

At a cabinet council the government decided to grant autonomy to Cuba under the suzerainty of Spain, and to continue the campaign as long as may be necessary.

A Suit For $10,000.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 7.—Suit has been begun by Mayer Weil and M. D. Mandelbaum against the Ft. Wayne and Electric Railway company, Frank De Haas Robinson, John J. Shipherd, Charles Hathaway and J. H. Bass on a note for $10,000. It is the first suit growing out of the sensational arrest of J. J. Shipherd for embezzlement.

THOUGHTS OF A TRAMP

Weary Willie Takes Notes About East Liverpool.

HIS RESEARCH MAKES HIM TIRED

He Discourseth About Illegal Liquor Selling, Sabbath Breaking, Late Hours, the Non-Enforcement of the Bike and Other Ordinances.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW—I'm a tramp—a common, everyday, homely, unassuming and modest tramp; but, nevertheless, I am an observant wanderer, and make keen note of my surroundings. I have had, in my past life, golden opportunities of education, and have taken advantage of them to some extent. I have had golden opportunities in the way of business enterprises, and at one time, years ago, had accumulated a snug fortune. Liquor was my downfall. And now I am a tramp. Liquor has made many like unto me, and will make thousands more. The laws of this great land simply pay a premium upon the production of tramps. The chief agent employed is the liquor traffic, and truly the agency fills the bill.

But to come back to my wanderings about East Liverpool. They tell me that a city ordinance declares that saloons shall close at 11 o'clock at night, and no more liquor shall be sold over the bars thereof until a given hour the next morning. My powers of observation show me that the ordinance is a mere farce, calculated to lull the lovers of law into a state of security. I know that liquor is sold over many bars in your city, by the drink, until the early hours of morning.

The same powers of observation and practical experience show me that your Sunday laws respecting liquor selling are indeed such a howling farce as to cause much merriment in the lives of lawbreaking and law-defying saloon-keepers in East Liverpool.

Your laws state that boys and girls of a certain age shall be in their homes and off the streets and alleys at a given hour at night. This law is also a howling farce, as I have ample reason to know, through personal experience. Further, I know that your police force is acquainted with the same fact.

Your city council has made rules governing, or supposed to govern, bike riding on your public thoroughfares. These rules are also a howling farce, as can be proven by hundreds of reliable witnesses. The mayor of your city and the policemen make no attempt to enforce this last ordinance, as I have full cause to know, as I have noted bike riders break all the rules connected with this ordinance, in the very sight and presence of different policemen, who looked at the offenders and smiled and smiled again, and made no attempt to interfere with the riders. In a word, the policemen mentioned acted as if they had orders to pay no attention to the ordinances, or to the orders of the city council, but acted as they pleased and bid council and councilmen defiance. I am a tramp, and don't care for work under any circumstances, and the average citizen of your place might assert that I am naturally tired. But, if I were a good, conservative, hustling, energetic and aggressive business man of East Liverpool, the non-enforcement of existing laws and ordinances would indeed make me very, very weary.

THE QUEEN STRONGMINDED.

Evidence in Tennyson's Biography That She Runs Affairs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A copyrighted telegram from London to The Evening Post says: "No little talk has been aroused in political circles over passages in Lord Tennyson's biography which nearly all the reviewers purposely or accidentally overlooked. These passages, in letters between Lord Tennyson and the queen, furnish the first direct evidence of the queen's bitter and active hostility to the home-rule policy of her then constitutional advisers, and quite upset the notion that the queen has become the mere echo of her ministers' views."

It is a well known fact that the letters are now published by the deliberate wish of the her majesty. This lends peculiar interest and importance to the disclosure, suggesting either her belief that Irish home rule is dead beyond recall, though Mr. John Morley has this week again nailed the home-rule colors to the Liberal mast, or else her fixed determination to withhold her acceptance of any such constitutional change.

MANY NEW FEVER CASES.

New Orleans Has Another Recordbreaking Experience—Forty Cases and Five Deaths—The Total Death Mark Near 100 at Mobile—At Other Places.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—Another recordbreaker has occurred, both as to the number of yellow fever cases and as to the number of deaths that had been reported. The increase of cases was not unexpected. The weather has been warm, and the large territory the board of health has to cover makes perfect scrutiny impossible, and germs are being distributed which, if the totality of cases was fewer, would easily be restrained. While the number of cases under treatment are in the neighborhood of 250 there are many houses which have not yet been disinfected, but in which the patients have been declared well.

Less restraint than usual is imposed on the inmates of such premises, and the result has been that the number of foci has been increased. But the total death rate is still small in proportion to the number of cases. The new cases numbered 40 and deaths 5.

Two of the new cases are in Algiers, making seven that have appeared in that suburb. The disease has apparently died out at Ocean Springs.

MOBILE, Oct. 7.—The total cases of yellow fever here have reached the 100 mark. The actual total was 99; total deaths to date, 16. There were no new deaths reported and only four new cases.

The relief work proceeds with commendable rapidity. Many in destitution were helped. In some instances there were found families who through reason of sickness of members or by having their breadwinner out of work, were without the least bit of food in the house. Some very touching appeals have reached the committee, who are compelled to ask for assistance.

EDWARDS, MISS., Oct. 7.—There have been 16 new cases of fever. Total deaths to date, 15; total cases to date, in town and the immediate country, 366; total number convalescent and discharged, 205; total under treatment, 106; seriously ill, 8; with black vomit, 1.

The report from Nitta Youma is to the effect that there is one new case. This makes six in all at that place.

SERIOUS FIRE IN CHICAGO.

A Horse Pavilion, Business Houses and Residences Burned.

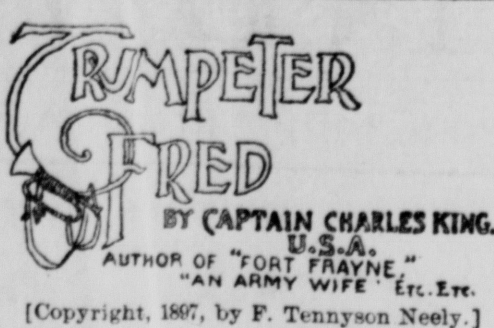

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Fanned by a strong wind from the west, a fire broke out in the Dexter park pavilion at the Union stock yards, spread to the district between Halsted street and Union avenue and Forty-third and Forty-fifth streets, demolishing business houses and residences.

The worst sufferers among the residents were those living along Halsted street between Forty-third and Forty-fourth streets. Business houses and residences alike, all of them frame structures, furnished ready material for the flames. The total damage to the Dexter park pavilion is estimated at more than $50,000 but it may exceed that sum, as the exact number of horses burned in the fire is not known, and a calculation of the amount of food stored in the pavilion is also yet to be made.

A number of persons were injured during the fight with the flames and one man, unknown, according to an employee of the stockyards, was burned to death.

"Turned south toward the Sidney route?"

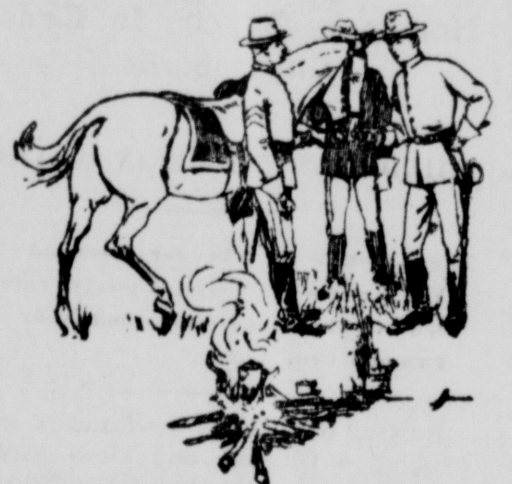

"Yes, sir, as though he was going to skirt the road awhile, then make for Scott's Bluffs, keeping well west of the Sidney stage route. If he got on that, he'd be likely to meet Captain Forrest's troop, sir."

"But you were in charge of the guard, sergeant. How came it that your sentries and you could let a man slip out with his horse and everything? The night was still, and they ought to have heard, even if they couldn't see."

"It was dark as pitch, lieutenant. The new moon was down before 11 o'clock, and, as for hearing, the horses were uneasy and stamping or snorting all the while from midnight until 2 o'clock. Either they sniffed Indians or the coyotes startled them. Then the stream makes such a noise over the rocks, sir, and the lieutenant will remember we had no sentries out across the stream. The Indians couldn't stampede the herd from that direction."

"But how could he get his horse out from the herd without?"

"It wasn't there, sir," broke in the trooper, eager to defend himself against the imputation of carelessness or neglect. "Sergeant Graham will bear me out, sir, that Trumpeter Waller has been allowed to lariat his horse close by where he slept, and sometimes he'd loop the lariat by a light cord to his wrist. The captain allowed it, sir, and I supposed that the lieutenant would not care to change the captain's orders. Last night he slept, or rather made down his blanket and drove his picket pin at the lower edge of the bivouac, sir, down there by that point, and Private Donovan tells me he moved still farther down after dark. We could hear his horse whinnying awhile—he didn't like being so far from the others. It's my belief, sir, he waited until all was quiet and took some time when I was out on the prairie visiting the sentries to slip up the bank to where Sergeant Graham was sleeping, make his haul of the money and then ride for all that he was worth as soon as he had got beyond earshot. It was easy enough to slip away through the stream without being heard."

"He has left his saddlebags, blanket and everything that was heavy, except his arms, behind him," said Graham moodily.

"And you really think that he has stolen the money and is trying to escape?" questioned the lieutenant.

"Indeed, sir," answered Dawson almost tearfully, "I don't know what to think. I hate to believe it of the boy we were all so fond of, though I used to plague him sometimes, just in fun. But I don't know what else to think. The men say that he has been a little wild at times since he got from under the old man's care. But I don't know, sir. I wouldn't be apt to know what was going on in the barrack there at Robinson."

CHAPTER VI.

CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE.

Blunt turned sorrowfully away and began to pace slowly up and down the bank. Near at hand over a little campfire his coffee-pot was bubbling and hissing enticingly, but even the aroma of his accustomed morning beverage failed to attract him. What was he to do? What could he do? Ordered to remain there to escort the captain safely to Red Cloud on his return from the court, it was impossible to pursue. Equally unwise would it be to send a small squad. Waller had taken his life in his hands when he rode away through the night, but he could cross the Rawhide and be in comparative safety, so far as the Indian attack was concerned, by sunrise of this day. Now that daylight had come, Blunt well knew that every stretch of prairie from the Platte to the White river would be thoroughly searched by keen and eager eyes, and death would be the very least that any small party of whites could expect. He knew perfectly well that already he and his little troop were being closely scrutinized from the distant ridges. Had he not seen in the tepees of the Cheyennes, but the week before, as many as three pairs of binocular field-glasses, and had not Colonel Randall told him they knew their use and value as well as any one? If there was only some way of getting word to Captain Charlton at Laramie! There ran the single wire of the military telegraph, but there was neither office nor station nearer than Red Cloud Agency. No man in the troop would thank him for being ordered to go either way with dispatches, though he knew the order would be obeyed.

Silently and gloomily, instead of with their usual cheery alacrity, the men had got to work with their currycomb and brushes and were touching up their horses while waiting for their own breakfast, and presently Blunt's orderly came forward, holding a tin cup of steaming coffee.

"Won't the lieutenant drink a little of this, sir, and try a bite of bacon? There isn't much appetite in the troop this morning, sir, but it ain't so much because the money's gone. I've known the old sergeant and the boy high unto ten years now, sir, and I never thought it would come to this."

Blunt thanked the soldier and sat down at the edge of the rushing stream, sipping his coffee and trying to think what to do. The drink warmed his blood and cheered him up a trifle. Ordering his horse to be saddled, he mounted and, taking his rifle, rode through the Niobrara and out upon the open prairie on the other side. It was not long before he found the hoof tracks made the night before, and without knowing why he slowly followed them out toward the low ridge at the southwest. For ten minutes he went at a quiet walk and with downward searching eyes as he reached the road, striving to decide which hoof prints were made by Waller's horse.

Suddenly back at camp he heard the ringing report of a cavalry carbine borne on the rising breeze and, whirling about, saw that they were signaling to him. Putting spurs to his steed, he galloped full tilt for the ford and then for the first time saw the cause of the excitement. Far up on the opposite slope and jogging easily down toward the troop came an Indian pony and an Indian rider, but not in war paint and feathers. As Mr. Blunt plunged through the stream he recognized the young half breed scout known to all of the soldiers as Little Bat, and Bat, without a word, rode up and handed him a letter. It was from the commanding officer at Fort Robinson and very much to the point. It read somewhat as follows:

"Captain Charlton telegraphs that he will be detained several days. Meantime you are needed here, as the Indians are again quitting the reservations in large numbers. Move immediately upon receipt of this."

That evening, therefore, the little troop once more rode down the valley of the White river, the "Smoking Earth," as the Indians called it, and by sunset were camped at Red Cloud. In much distress of mind Mr. Blunt called upon the commanding officer to tell him of the disappearance of the money and his trumpeter and to ask the colonel's advice as to the proper course for him to pursue. It was agreed that telegrams should be sent at once to the captain at Fort Laramie and to the commanding officer at Sidney barracks on the railway, notifying them of the crime and the desertion. Blunt begged for a moment's delay until he could hear from Sergeant Graham, whom he had sent to make certain investigations, and long before tattoo the sergeant came, and with him the hospital steward.

"Lieutenant, the storekeeper says he sold just such a handkerchief as that to Trumpeter Waller last week, and the steward can tell about the chloroform."

Both officers looked inquiringly at the steward.

"Yes, sir, it was pay day that young Waller handed me a penciled note from Sergeant Graham, saying that he had a bad toothache and asking for a little chloroform, and I gave it to him."

"I never wrote such a note, sir, and never sent him on such a message," said Graham.

CHAPTER VII.

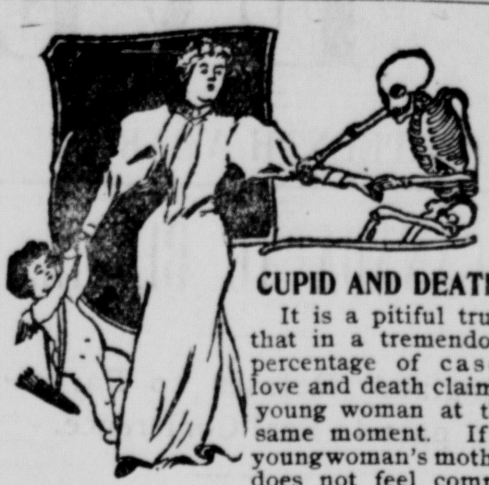

TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES.

Bad news travels fast. Captain Charlton at Fort Laramie was stunned by the tidings flashed to him by telegraph from Red Cloud. Despite the array of damaging evidence, he could not bring himself to believe that Fred Waller was a thief, but he was sore at heart when he thought of the misery and sorrow the news must bring to the dear ones at his army home, above all to the proud old sergeant, whose life seemed almost bound up in the boy.

Well knowing that it could only be a day or two before the story would make its way to the posts along the railroad and would reach Sanders, doubtless in a more exaggerated form, the captain decided to warn his wife at once, and by the stage leaving that very night a letter went in to Cheyenne, and thence by train over the great "divide" of the Rockies to Fort Sanders, giving to Mrs. Charlton all particulars thus far received, but charging her to say nothing until further tidings.

"I cannot believe it," wrote he, "and am going at once to join the troop and make full investigation. Meantime I have written by the same mail to Major Edwards, who commands at Sidney barracks, to make every effort to trace the boy should he have come south of the Platte, and you must be sure to see, when the news reaches Sanders, that the sergeant is assured of my dis-

CUPID AND DEATH.

It is a pitiful truth that in a tremendous percentage of cases love and death claim a young woman at the same moment. If a young woman's mother does not feel competent to give her daughter the right advice about how to keep herself well and strong in a maidenly way, she should seek the advice of some physician of years of wide experience, and of substantial reputation. A young woman naturally does not like to be a subject of discussion, examination and the horrible local treatment of a home doctor. Moreover, obscure physicians make the mistake of attributing her ills to indigestion, or heart or liver trouble, when the real cause is weakness or disease of the delicate organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood.

The embarrassing examinations and local treatment upon which most doctors insist, are nine times in ten entirely unnecessary. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts directly on a woman's special organism and makes it strong and healthy, and competent to bear the strain of wifehood and motherhood. It allays inflammation, soothes pain, heals ulceration and stops debilitating drains. It banishes the sufferings of the period of expectancy, and makes baby's arrival in the world easy and almost painless. Good druggists recommend it. Letters addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., are sacredly confidential.

"It has been nearly four years since I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. C. C. Clark, of New Rome, Floyd Co., Ga., "and have been no signs of any return of female complaint. I am now fifty years old and can walk two miles and one-half, and to-day am as well as ever. I have used Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and found them as good as recommended."

Look glum and feel glum? That's biliousness and constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a sure, speedy and permanent cure. They never gripe. At all medicine stores.

Here's some evidence of it.

Mrs. Wm. Dunn, of 192 Sixth street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did for me what none of the doctors could do. Doctors told me I had gravel and a little relief was all I could expect. I suffered terribly—not only lately, but for two or three years, alternately better and worse, with severe pains across the small of my back and up my sides, particularly my right side. The pains were so severe that I was often obliged to stay in bed, not being able to get up. My limbs used to swell up so I could hardly walk, and periodically would be taken with such severe pains through the groins that I could hardly stand it. The doctors advised hot applications and gave me bottle after bottle of medicine, but I did not receive any real benefit until I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy. Having seen them so highly recommended by others, I took them and am gratified to say that they helped me almost at once, and I have every confidence they will ultimately cure me."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers, price 50 cents, or sent by mail by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

THREE VILLAGES DESTROYED.

Four Persons Perished in Forest Fires in Ontario.

OTTAWA, Oct. 7.—Four bodies have been recovered near South Indian as a result of the forest fires. They are those of Mrs. Levielle, Miss Stiles, her sister, and Mrs. Leville's two children. The women rushed from their house to escape to the clearing, but the smoke surrounded them and they lost their way and ran into the flames. Two or three houses are all that is left of a once thriving village at South Indian. Two houses and a hotel are all that remain of Casselman. The village of Cheney is obliterated.

"Turned south toward the Sidney route?"

"Yes, sir, as though he was going to skirt the road awhile, then make for Scott's Bluffs, keeping well west of the Sidney stage route. If he got on that, he'd be likely to meet Captain Forrest's troop, sir."

"But you were in charge of the guard, sergeant. How came it that your sentries and you could let a man slip out with his horse and everything? The night was still, and they ought to have heard, even if they couldn't see."

"It was dark as pitch, lieutenant. The new moon was down before 11 o'clock, and, as for hearing, the horses were uneasy and stamping or snorting all the while from midnight until 2 o'clock. Either they sniffed Indians or the coyotes startled them. Then the stream makes such a noise over the rocks, sir, and the lieutenant will remember we had no sentries out across the stream. The Indians couldn't stampede the herd from that direction."

"But how could he get his horse out from the herd without?"

"It wasn't there, sir," broke in the trooper, eager to defend himself against the imputation of carelessness or neg-

"Which way has he gone? Could you tell?"

lect. "Sergeant Graham will bear me out, sir, that Trumpeter Waller has been allowed to lariat his horse close by where he slept, and sometimes he'd loop the lariat by a light cord to his wrist. The captain allowed it, sir, and I supposed that the lieutenant would not care to change the captain's orders. Last night he slept, or rather made down his blanket and drove his picket pin at the lower edge of the bivouac, sir, down there by that point, and Private Donovan tells me he moved still farther down after dark. We could hear his horse whinnying awhile—he didn't like being so far from the others. It's my belief, sir, he waited until all was quiet and took some time when I was out on the prairie visiting the sentries to slip up the bank to where Sergeant Graham was sleeping, make his haul of the money and then ride for all that he was worth as soon as he had got beyond earshot. It was easy enough to slip away through the stream without being heard."

"He has left his saddlebags, blanket and everything that was heavy, except his arms, behind him," said Graham moodily.

"And you really think that he has stolen the money and is trying to escape?" questioned the lieutenant.

"Indeed, sir," answered Dawson almost tearfully, "I don't know what to think. I hate to believe it of the boy we were all so fond of, though I used to plague him sometimes, just in fun. But I don't know what else to think. The men say that he has been a little wild at times since he got from under the old man's care. But I don't know, sir. I wouldn't be apt to know what was going on in the barrack there at Robinson."

CHAPTER VI.

CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE.

Blunt turned sorrowfully away and began to pace slowly up and down the bank. Near at hand over a little campfire his coffeepot was bubbling and his accustomed morning beverage failed to attract him. What was he to do? What could he do? Ordered to remain there to escort the captain safely to Red Cloud on his return from the court, it was impossible to pursue. Equally unwise would it be to send a small squad. Waller had taken his life in his hands when he rode away through the night, but he could cross the Rawhide and be in comparative safety, so far as the Indian attack was concerned, by sunrise of this day. Now that daylight had come, Blunt well knew that every stretch of prairie from the Platte to the White river would be thoroughly searched by keen and eager eyes, and death would be the very least that any small party of whites could expect. He knew perfectly well that already he and his little troop were being closely scrutinized from the distant ridges. Had he not seen in the tepees of the Cheyennes, but the week before, as many as three pairs of binocular field-glasses, and had not Colonel Randall told him they knew their use and value as well as any one? If there was only some way of getting word to Captain Charlton at Laramie! There ran the single wire of the military telegraph, but there was neither office nor station nearer than Red Cloud Agency. No man in the troop would thank him for being ordered to go either way with dispatches, though he knew the order would be obeyed.

Silently and gloomily, instead of with their usual cheery alacrity, the men had got to work with their currycomb and brushes and were touching up their horses while waiting for their own breakfast, and presently Blunt's orderly came forward, holding a tin cup of steaming coffee.

"Won't the lieutenant drink a little of this, sir, and try a bite of bacon? There isn't much appetite in the troop this morning, sir, but it ain't so much because the money's gone. I've known the old sergeant and the boy nigh unto ten years now, sir, and I never thought it would come to this."

Blunt thanked the soldier and sat down at the edge of the rushing stream, sipping his coffee and trying to think what to do. The drink warmed his blood and cheered him up a trifle. Ordering his horse to be saddled, he mounted and, taking his rifle, rode through the Niobrara and out upon the open prairie on the other side. It was not long before he found the hoof tracks made the night before, and without knowing why he slowly followed them out toward the low ridge at the southwest. For ten minutes he went at a quiet walk and with downward searching eyes as he reached the road, striving to decide which hoof prints were made by Waller's horse.

Suddenly back at camp he heard the ringing report of a cavalry carbine borne on the rising breeze and, whirling about, saw that they were signaling to him. Putting spurs to his steed, he galloped full tilt for the ford and then for the first time saw the cause of the excitement. Far up on the opposite slope and jogging easily down toward the troop came an Indian pony and an Indian rider, but not in war paint and feathers. As Mr. Blunt plunged through the stream he recognized the young half breed scout known to all of the soldiers as Little Bat, and Bat, without a word, rode up and handed him a letter. It was from the commanding officer at Fort Robinson and very much to the point. It read somewhat as follows:

"Captain Charlton telegraphs that he will be detained several days. Meantime you are needed here, as the Indians are again quitting the reservations in large numbers. Move immediately upon receipt of this."

That evening, therefore, the little troop once more rode down the valley of the White river, the "Smoking Earth," as the Indians called it, and by sunset were camped at Red Cloud. In much distress of mind Mr. Blunt called upon the commanding officer to tell him of the disappearance of the money and his trumpeter and to ask the colonel's advice as to the proper course for him to pursue. It was agreed that telegrams should be sent at once to the captain at Fort Laramie and to the commanding officer at Sidney barracks on the railway, notifying them of the crime and the desertion. Blunt begged for a moment's delay until he could hear from Sergeant Graham, whom he had sent to make certain investigations, and long before tattoo the sergeant came, and with him the hospital steward.

"Lieutenant, the storekeeper says he sold just such a handkerchief as that to Trumpeter Waller last week, and the steward can tell about the chloroform."

Both officers looked inquiringly at the steward.

"Yes, sir, it was pay day that young Waller handed me a penciled note from Sergeant Graham, saying that he had a bad toothache and asking for a little chloroform, and I gave it to him."

"I never wrote such a note, sir, and never sent him on such a message," said Graham.

CHAPTER VII.

TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES.

Bad news travels fast. Captain Charlton at Fort Laramie was stunned by the tidings flashed to him by telegraph from Red Cloud. Despite the array of damaging evidence, he could not bring himself to believe that Fred Waller was a thief, but he was sore at heart when he thought of the misery and sorrow the news must bring to the dear ones at his army home, above all to the proud old sergeant, whose life seemed almost bound up in the boy.

Well knowing that it could only be a day or two before the story would make its way to the posts along the railroad and would reach Sanders, doubtless in a more exaggerated form, the captain decided to warn his wife at once, and by the stage leaving that very night a letter went in to Cheyenne, and thence by train over the great "divide" of the Rockies to Fort Sanders, giving to Mrs. Charlton all particulars thus far received, but charging her to say nothing until further tidings.

"I cannot believe it," wrote he, "and am going at once to join the troop and make full investigation. Meantime I have written by the same mail to Major Edwards, who commands at Sidney barracks, to make every effort to trace the boy should he have come south of the Platte, and you must be sure to see, when the news reaches Sanders, that the sergeant is assured of my dis-

CUPID AND DEATH.

It is a pitiful truth that in a tremendous percentage of cases love and death claim a young woman at the same moment. If a young woman's mother does not feel compelled to give her daughter the right advice about how to keep herself well and strong in a maidenly way, she should seek the advice of some physician of years of wide experience, and of substantial reputation. A young woman naturally does not like to be a subject of discussion, examination and the horrible local treatment of a home doctor. Moreover, obscure physicians make the mistake of attributing her ills to indigestion, or heart or liver trouble, when the real cause is weakness or disease of the delicate organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood.

The embarrassing examinations and local treatment upon which most doctors insist, are nine times in ten entirely unnecessary. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts directly on a woman's special organism and makes it strong and healthy, and competent to bear the strain of wifehood and motherhood. It allays inflammation, soothes pain, heals ulceration and stops debilitating drains. It banishes the sufferings of the period of expectancy, and makes baby's arrival in the world easy and almost painless. Good druggists recommend it. Letters addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., are sacredly confidential.

"It has been nearly four years since I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. C. C. Clark, of New Rome, Floyd Co., Ga., "and there have been no signs of any return of female complaint. I am now fifty years old and can walk two miles and one-half, and to-day am as well as ever. I have used Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and found them as good as recommended."

Look glum and feel glum? That's biliousness and constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a sure, speedy and permanent cure. They never gripe. At all medicine stores.

THE WORK DOES ON.

East Liverpool is Interested—It Has Much to do With the Welfare of Our People.

Never out of work.

That's the case with the kidneys. Twenty-four hours to the day is the time they put in.

They're equal to it when they're well. But they get sick.

Stomping positions of the body, straining, a fall or over-exertion often make the kidneys sick.

But the work must go on.

They need a helper.

They ask you for it through the back.

When the back aches it's the kidneys calling for assistance.

Neglect their petition and trouble follows.

Serious trouble, urinary trouble, diabetes, Bright's disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills are kidney helpers.

Perfect mechanics in their line.

Help the kidneys and cure their ills.

Hard at it here in East Liverpool.

Relieving tired kidneys, curing sick ones.

The good work goes on.

Here's some evidence of it.

Mrs. Wm. Dunn, of 192 Sixth street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did for me what none of the doctors could do. Doctors told me I had gravel and a little relief was all I could expect. I suffered terribly—not only lately, but for two or three years, alternately better and worse, with severe pains across the small of my back and up my sides, particularly my right side. The pains were so severe that I was often obliged to stay in bed, not being able to get up. My limbs used to swell up so I could hardly walk, and periodically would be taken with such severe pains through the groins that I could hardly stand it. The doctors advised hot applications and gave me bottle after bottle of medicine, but I did not receive any real benefit until I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy. Having seen them so highly recommended by others, I took them and am gratified to say that they helped me almost at once, and I have every confidence they will ultimately cure me."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers, price 50 cents, or sent by mail by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

THREE VILLAGES DESTROYED.

Four Persons Perished in Forest Fires in Ontario.

OTTAWA, Oct. 7.—Four bodies have been recovered near South Indian as a result of the forest fires. They are those of Mrs. Leveille, Miss Stiles, her sister, and Mrs. Leveille's two children.

The women rushed from their house to escape to the clearing, but the smoke surrounded them and they lost their way and ran into the flames.

Two or three houses are all that is left of a once thriving village at South Indian. Two houses and a hotel are all that remain of Casselman. The village of Cheney is obliterated.

SIX DIPHTHERIA CASES

Have Developed In the Family of George Todd.

OFFICER THORNE'S CHILD IS ILL

The Disease Has Been Spreading Because the Quarantine Is Not Rigidly Maintained—A Good Republican Meeting.
Jimmy Rice at City Hall.

The rapidity with which diphtheria is spreading has become alarming, although the authorities have endeavored to keep the matter quiet. At the residence of George Todd, in Commerce street, seven cases have developed, and a case has appeared at the residence of Officer Thorne, in Wood street. All comes, seemingly, from the number of privileges given patients. One of the Todd children, who is in the eighth grade in the Central school building, became very sick at school and was sent home by the teacher. The next day the case developed. The child of Officer Thorne was in the same grade at school, and soon after was sent home afflicted with the same trouble.

Good Republican Meeting.

The Republican central committee met at MacKenzie's hall last evening, and committees on music, printing and reception were appointed, and politics in general were discussed. The prevailing sentiment is to create sufficient interest to make things lively between now and election. A number of speakers have been chosen to meet the people here, among them being Solicitor Thompson, of Steubenville; Senator Hanna, Senator Foraker and Judge Goff. The secretary was instructed to insist on the county committee giving Wellsville at least one speaker of national prominence, and the choice lies between Mr. Hanna and Mr. Foraker. The meeting was harmonious. The committee will endeavor to have good music and give visitors a cordial reception.

The Switch.

Council and the board of trade will meet tonight, and it is thought will settle the switch problem. The route is surveyed and platted. The proposed switch will leave the main line on the water works spur, pass to Stevenson's foundry and strike Second street near Walnut. From here it takes a direction toward Third, entering at the east end of the Lawson frame row. From here it will be built to the corner of Coal street. Entering this street it takes the most direct route down the south side of the run until it reaches Fifteenth street. According to the plat the Baum, Pioneer and Patterson potteries will be connected by spurs.

No Enthusiasm There.

Jimmy Rice talked to an attentive audience at city hall, last night, in spite of the fact that not more than 60 persons were there. Canton's mayor was in good form, and his words of burning eloquence filled the room with denunciation of Senator Hanna and the remainder of the Republican party. He appreciated his audience, he said, and hoped he had been of as much benefit to them as they had been to him.

Gained Nothing by Escape.

Officers Cohagan and Johnston made an unexpected arrest last evening. At least it was unexpected to Ollie Downer. A few weeks ago Downer was sentenced to the workhouse, and the other day word was received here that he had escaped. Officers kept close watch, with the above result. Ollie will have 30 days added to his sentence for misconduct.

The News of Wellsville.

The pay car came in at 3:30 o'clock, yesterday, and the men received their pay. Among others who signed checks was Claim Agent Saunders. His condition has been such that he was barely able to write his name.

The sanitary potters who have been in the employ of J. H. Baum filed their claims with the assignee, John W. Vodrey, yesterday.

A case of scarlet fever has developed at the Dennis residence in Commerce street.

Councilman Beacom will go to Frankfort Springs, Pa., today, but will return in time to attend the joint meeting of council with the board.

The state election proclamation has been posted at city hall.

The ladies of the Christian church served supper to the delegates to the district convention yesterday evening.

The big Cleveland and Pittsburg engine pulled 35 loaded cars north yesterday, and picked up 10 more at Bayard. The usual load for a common engine is about 20 cars.

W. Q. Glessner, of Georgia, met the Georgia colonists recently and gave out information that interested about 30 people for over an hour. The colonists are growing in numbers.

Miss Elizabeth McFeely, who died at the residence of W. H. Elliott, Coal street, Tuesday evening, was buried today at 2 o'clock at Spring Hill cemetery. She has been a resident of this city for the past six years, and came here from Steubenville.

The Wellsville football team are just now thinking of how they will stand up against the assaults of the visiting team Saturday, since they have intelligence to the effect that the Acmes have consolidated with another strong team in Steubenville. A hot game is expected.

Miss Maggie Martin, of Macedonia, is visiting F. R. Martin, of Center street, and will leave for Burgettstown this morning.

Earnest Beabout, of Cleveland, is visiting in the city.

Uses of Science.

"The wretch," cried the girl, "kissed me!"

"Surely," they exclaimed, exchanging glances of alarm, "you must be mistaken."

She shivered affrightedly. "No," she said, "I cannot be mistaken. The microscope revealed the characteristic bacillus."

She had had her doubts in the beginning, but a bacteriological examination had discovered beyond the possibility of cavil that she had been kissed.—London Fun.

IT WAS A REAL FIGHT

A PIECE OF STAGE REALISM THE GALLERY DIDN'T APPRECIATE.

The Hero Had Some Difficulty In Carrying Out the Intentions of the Author. How Two Actors Settled a Disagreement and Lost Their Jobs.

Every day one sees things which force him to believe that Barnum said it all when he declared that "the American people like to be humbugged." They will applaud the bogus, the make believe, and allow the genuine—or, to use a worse bit of slang, "the real thing"—to go off the scene without so much as "a hand."

Fine frenzies in the dramatic business are a waste of energy, so I am told by a couple of actors, and here is the story, a tale of how two ambitious ones gave to the exasperating public perhaps the greatest bit of stage realism every presented and received for their pains—and bruises—an awful silence and a few pointed remarks from the gallery critics. I forget what the play was, and who the actors were has nothing whatever to do with the matter at this time. They are both stars today, however. One did heroic parts and the other the "Ha, ha; I'll steal the girl." They had played in several pieces together and were friends. One was a believer in real tears and all that goes to constitute living the part, while the other believed that at no time should the actor allow the lines or situations of the piece to make him forget himself.

In the piece which they were playing the hero and the villain meet at a critical moment and fight. In case the hero failed to settle his opponent—well, he got his salary for doing it, so it had to occur.

The fight was rehearsed and was made to look real to a startling degree. The gallery used to go wild and the whole house resounded with the applause, but this did not suit the villain, who believed in realism. It was his belief that a real fight would make a hit. I believe I mentioned the fact that they were friends. That was true. They were up to the moment where one, in a moment of indiscretion, attempted to criticize the other. Of course everybody knows that when that occurs all friendship ceases—between actors. Of course there were coarse remarks passed, and the one who believed in realism and being an actor off and on finally folded his arms and said, "When and where?"

"Right here, if you like. It's a short job anywhere."

"You think so, eh? Well, it shall oc-cure in our fight scene tonight. For once the public shall see what they pay for. The plot of the play necessitates that you vanquish me. We shall see whether it is so short a job."

The worst of the quarrel was that they were both athletes, good wrestlers and boxers and willing.

The play dragged slowly that night until the fight scene.

The hero's line, "It is either you or I, Reginald Marshallson," was answered by—in an undertone—"You bet it is, and I'll mark you so you won't play for a month."

Instead of going to a clinch, as usual, they both sparred about for an opening. They were too long in finding it, and from the gallery a critic shouted: "What's de matter wid youse? Why don't ye git togedder?"

Then they both led and landed with a wallop. Then they clinched. The villain back heeled the hero, and down they went.

"Fight like a man, not like a dog," whispered the hero in hoarse tones.

The villain allowed him to get on his feet, and they began to spar again. About the time the gallery got restless the hero landed a right on the villain's eye that sent him reeling. Had he reeled the other way all would have been well, as the hero would have gone on with the piece, but as the hero crossed the stage toward him the realist rushed and knocked him down with a swinging left.

Now, by all the laws of melodrama the villain at no time should get the better of the hero in a personal encounter. The gallery knew that and roundly hissed the hero for so far forgetting himself. The stage manager knew it and ran to one of the wings to prompt him. The hero knew it, and he went back at the villain for keeps.

They fought for five minutes all over the stage. They knocked down papier mache trees, a stoop to a house and a fence, besides each other. The whole company stood in the wings watching the mill, and the manager cursed and made awful threats in a stage whisper, but somehow the audience was not impressed. The gallery yelled: "Yer fakin'. Why don't ye fight?" The balcony, from which on previous nights waves of approval had broken, sat quiet, bored and sullen. The parquet, always willing to follow the lead from above on previous occasions, now sat glum, waiting until the very bad imitation of a fight should end.

The hero fought desperately. He must win. The plot of the piece worked out from his victory, but the villain clinched and fought as he had never dreamed of fighting. In spite of warnings from the wings he refused to be knocked senseless and allow the hero to go on and rescue the girl.

At last the stage manager threatened them with the curtain, and the hero with one mighty effort freed himself from the grasp of the realist and, rushing toward the house in which the heroine was supposed to be, cried with a harelip accent: "Beware of me, Reginald Marshallson! My just purpose shall not be thwarted."

As he had one eye closed and his mouth swollen out of heroic proportions the sentence did not cause the gallery to make any particular fuss. The heroine refused to allow him to kiss her in the rescue scene, and the manager discharged them both.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Alleged Praying Thief.

He had a sanctimonious air, and as he knelt in prayer near the altar of Notre Dame church, Chicago, nobody would have thought of disturbing his devotions—that is, unless there were very good and excellent reasons for doing so.

Henry Gotrox, the sexton, knew better. He was of the mind that the pious attitude was bogus. So he rudely upset the kneeling young man and caused him to be arrested.

He didn't do this because the man was caught in a counterfeit prayer. That is not an offense for which a man may be hauled to jail. Gotrox had found in the church a long, thin piece of bamboo smeared with glue. The contribution boxes have been robbed lately, and it was suspected that the bamboo and the glue had been the passive agents in the hands of some active man with neither conscience nor religion.

John Yager is the name of the person who is accused of this offense. He denies knowledge of the glue and the cane and says that his prayer was real.—Chicago Times-Herald.

HANDS OFF THE BIRDS.

Time was when man made ready war
And in his caverned lair
Beaded his fellow's teeth and wore
The trophies in his hair.

Time is when ruthless savage, swart,
And slaves of fashion, fair,
Flay God's sweet choristers to sport
The trophies in their hair.

Where lies the onus of the doom?
Who flaunt symbolic pain?
The principals are those for whom
The innocents are slain.

How long, Lord God, shall blood price gain
Buy inhumanity?
How long shall anguished stigma stain
The brow of vanity?

Hands off the birds, whose worship pours
From every templed grove!
Let live earth's fittest metaphors
Of beauty, joy and love!

IT WAS A REAL FIGHT

A PIECE OF STAGE REALISM THE GALLERY DIDN'T APPRECIATE.

The Hero Had Some Difficulty In Carrying Out the Intentions of the Author. How Two Actors Settled a Disagreement and Lost Their Jobs.

Every day one sees things which force him to believe that Barnum said it all when he declared that "the American people like to be humbugged." They will applaud the bogus, the make believe, and allow the genuine—or, to use a worse bit of slang, "the real thing"—to go off the scene without so much as "a hand."

Fine frenzies in the dramatic business are a waste of energy, so I am told by a couple of actors, and here is the story, a tale of how two ambitious ones gave to the exasperating public perhaps the greatest bit of stage realism every presented and received for their pains—and bruises—an awful silence and a few pointed remarks from the gallery critics. I forget what the play was, and who the actors were has nothing whatever to do with the matter at this time. They are both stars today, however. One did heroic parts and the other the "Ha, ha; I'll steal the girl." They had played in several pieces together and were friends. One was a believer in real tears and all that goes to constitute living the part, while the other believed that at no time should the actor allow the lines or situations of the piece to make him forget himself.

In the piece which they were playing the hero and the villain meet at a critical moment and fight. In case the hero failed to settle his opponent—well, he got his salary for doing it, so it had to occur.

The fight was rehearsed and was made to look real to a startling degree. The gallery used to go wild and the whole house resounded with the applause, but this did not suit the villain, who believed in realism. It was his belief that a real fight would make a hit. I believe I mentioned the fact that they were friends. That was true. They were up to the moment where one, in a moment of indiscretion, attempted to criticize the other. Of course everybody knows that when that occurs all friendship ceases—between actors. Of course there were coarse remarks passed, and the one who believed in realism and being an actor off and on finally folded his arms and said, "When and where?"

"Right here, if you like. It's a short job anywhere."

"You think so, eh? Well, it shall be our in our fight scene tonight. For once the public shall see what they pay for. The plot of the play necessitates that you vanquish me. We shall see whether it is so short a job."

The worst of the quarrel was that they were both athletes, good wrestlers and boxers and willing.

The play dragged slowly that night until the fight scene.

The hero's line, "It is either you or I, Reginald Marshallson," was answered by—in an undertone—"You bet it is, and I'll mark you so you won't play for a month."

Instead of going to a clinch, as usual, they both sparred about for an opening. They were too long in finding it, and from the gallery a critic shouted: "What's the matter wid youse? Why don't ye git together?"

Then they both led and landed with a wallop. Then they clinched. The villain back heeled the hero, and down they went.

"Fight like a man, not like a dog," whispered the hero in hoarse tones.

The villain allowed him to get on his feet, and they began to spar again. About the time the gallery got restless the hero landed a right on the villain's eye that sent him reeling. Had he reeled the other way all would have been well, as the hero would have gone on with the piece, but as the hero crossed the stage toward him the realist rushed and knocked him down with a swinging left.

Now, by all the laws of melodrama the villain at no time should get the better of the hero in a personal encounter. The gallery knew that and roundly hissed the hero for so far forgetting himself. The stage manager knew it and ran to one of the wings to prompt him. The hero knew it, and he went back at the villain for keeps.

They fought for five minutes all over the stage. They knocked down paper mache trees, a stoop to a house and a fence, besides each other. The whole company stood in the wings watching the mill, and the manager cursed and made awful threats in a stage whisper, but somehow the audience was not impressed. The gallery yelled: "Yer fakin. Why don't ye fight?" The balcony, from which on previous nights waves of approval had broken, sat quiet, bored and sullen. The parquet, always willing to follow the lead from above on previous occasions, now sat glum, waiting until the very bad imitation of a fight should end.

The hero fought desperately. He must win. The plot of the piece worked out from his victory, but the villain clinched and fought as he had never dreamed of fighting. In spite of warnings from the wings he refused to be knocked senseless and allow the hero to go on and rescue the girl.

At last the stage manager threatened them with the curtain, and the hero with one mighty effort freed himself from the grasp of the realist and, rushing toward the house in which the heroine was supposed to be, cried with a harelip accent: "Beware of me, Reginald Marshallson! My just purpose shall not be thwarted."

As he had one eye closed and his mouth swollen out of heroic proportions the sentence did not cause the gallery to make any particular fuss. The heroine refused to allow him to kiss her in the rescue scene, and the manager discharged them both.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Alleged Praying Thief.

He had a sanctimonious air, and as he knelt in prayer near the altar of Notre Dame church, Chicago, nobody would have thought of disturbing his devotions—that is, unless there were very good and excellent reasons for doing so.

Henry Gotrox, the sexton, knew better. He was of the mind that the pious attitude was bogus. So he rudely upset the kneeling young man and caused him to be arrested.

He didn't do this because the man was caught in a counterfeit prayer. That is not an offense for which a man may be hauled to jail. Gotrox had found in the church a long, thin piece of bamboo smeared with glue. The contribution boxes have been robbed lately, and it was suspected that the bamboo and the glue had been the passive agents in the hands of some active man with neither conscience nor religion.

John Yager is the name of the person who is accused of this offense. He denies knowledge of the glue and the cane and says that his prayer was real.—Chicago Times-Herald.

HANDS OFF THE BIRDS.

Time was when man made ready war
And in his caverned lair
Bearded his fellow's teeth and wore
The trophies in his hair.

Time is when ruthless savage, swart,
And slaves of fashion, fair,
Flay God's sweet choristers to sport
The trophies in their hair.

Where lies the onus of the doom?
Who flaunt symbolic pain?
The principals are those for whom
The innocents are slain.

How long, Lord God, shall blood price gain
Buy inhumanity?
How long shall sanguined stigma stain
The brow of vanity?

Hands off the birds, whose worship pours
From every templed grove!
Let live earth's fittest metaphors
Of beauty, joy and love!

JIMMY RICE in Wellsville last night talked principally through his hat.

GENERAL WARNER seems to have dropped out of sight since he announced his candidacy. Out of sight seems the general's normal condition.

SPAIN has delayed too long. The mere recall of Weyler will not recompense the poor Cubans for what they have suffered and lost these past two years.

BRYAN says the Chicago platform has been vindicated. Mr. Bryan should buy a dictionary and look diligently through the y's for that word. Then he will change his mind.

It is not at all likely that New York, with all its intelligence and ideas of advancement, will vote to burden itself with a dead weight such as Henry George will certainly prove to be should he be elected mayor. Great as it is the great city cannot afford it.

YESTERDAY'S NEWS REVIEW was an ideal afternoon paper. It contained 234 inches of pure local matter, and so many advertisements that any one in search of bargains could have found there announced just what he wanted. The NEWS REVIEW always leads all the time.

THE success of the Dingley law is so apparent that it is extremely doubtful if the friends of free trade will ever again make the question the foundation of a presidential campaign. No Democrat could today be elected on the platform which supported Grover Cleveland during a summer and fall five years ago.

ALTHOUGH Candidate Chapman is a rich man and has much maney at his command he is not being supported by many members of his party who, because of their wealth, are popularly supposed to possess some influence. Cal Brice, Tom Johnson, Jim Campbell, Judson Harmon, M. E. Ingalls and a score of others are not in the battle this year. They have pressing business engagements which are keeping them out of the state. Who can tell the reason?

A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN.

The Republicans of Ohio are not only meeting the enemy at every point, but with that determination which usually results in glorious victory they are sweeping through Democratic stronghold after stronghold, and are winning wherever they go. The number of speeches made every day shows that the campaign is being pushed with vigor. Men of brains, some of the brightest in the land, are explaining to the people just what the Democratic leaders did when they adopted the state platform, and the people are receiving the explanation in a manner which prophesies much for their actions on election day. It is that kind of campaign which Republicans admire.

NEW OFFICER IN CHARGE

Acting Secretary Stewart Goes to Michigan.

MR. CHARLES WILL RETURN

Until That Time Director Morris Will Look After His Own Work and the General Work of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Another change has taken place at the Young Men's Christian association, and the officers now believe they have matters arranged until Secretary Charles returns from his home in Utica.

George S. Stewart, who has been acting secretary for several months, left the city this morning for Muskegon, Mich., where he will take a position with the association at that place. His decision was only reached a few days ago, and the trustees have not held a meeting in order that plans for the future might be made. It is believed that no effort will be made to secure a secretary, and the business will be attended to by Physical Director Morris, who is well acquainted with the duties of the position. It is thought that Secretary Charles will return the first of the year, and it would not be wise to employ a man until that time.

A SALTY DOSE

Was Administered to Addison Duke in Lisbon.

LISBON, Oct. 7.—[Special]—Bella Gallagher has sued for her one-fifth interest in the coal under 114 acres of land in Washington township. The premises are not apportionable, and her share cannot be set off to her without injury, and she wants a sale. The defendants are Mrs. Mary McTighe, Susan Hanlin, Elizabeth Gallagher, D. Gallagher and the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal company.

The Indemnity Building and Loan company, of Cleveland, sued Mrs. Lucy Pitzer, of Rogers, for $284.

Addison Duke, convicted of a serious crime, was given four years in the penitentiary.

Stella M. Weldon, plaintiff to the divorce action against William Weldon, has consented to a private settlement, and the case withdrawn.

Joseph S. Faloon, of Hanover, has been sued by the First National bank of Lisbon for $150.

Alvin Baughman was brought to jail this morning from East Rochester, charged with stabbing Emmitt Baughman, his brother, with intent to kill. The cutting occurred last Monday during a drunken brawl, when the brother was badly wounded.

Joseph Faloon was convicted of assault and battery.

Matthew Tate, of Lisbon, was convicted of the same charge. Sentence has not been passed.

The Liverpool liquor cases, assigned for tomorrow, have been continued. The cases are against Samuel Whittenberger, Joseph Geon and Joseph Webber.

A Nation of Medicine Takers.

It is an accepted fact that the American people are the greatest users of medicines of one sort or another on the face of the earth. Imaginary ills make up a large part of man's earthly troubles. Some people need only to read the vivid description of some chronic disease, and they are at once victims to the complaint in question. Many patent medicine venders make use of this peculiarity and lead some people to believe that their tired feeling comes from their blood not being rich and red. Millions would be saved and our general health would be better if we would take medicine only when really needed and then get a remedy specially prepared for the disease with which we are suffering.

As an illustration, when you have sore throat, there can't be any imagination about it. Your throat hurts; probably is covered with white ulcer-ated spots, and you know you need a remedy. Use good judgment. Get a cure put up for this one purpose. There is such a remedy. Tonsiline is its name, and it is a wonder in its field. Being put up for this one class of diseases, it cures quickly, surely, and many times as if by magic. No family can afford to be without Tonsiline in the home, as it is a certain cure for Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Croup and Quinsy. Ask your neighbors who have used it. All druggists sell Tonsiline. 25 and 50 cents.

MAZARIN BIBLES COME HIGH.

What They Are and Why They Are So Called—$20,000 For One Copy.

At the sale of the Ashburnham library in London a copy of the Mazarin Bible brought the good sized sum of $20,000. The Mazarin Bible is so called because a copy of it was first discovered by De Bure in the library of Cardinal Mazarin, in Paris, about 1760. Its value for book collectors lies in the fact that it is the first book of any magnitude printed from movable types. It was issued by Gutenberg at Mainz, in 1450-5, and for that reason Henry Stevens calls it the Gutenberg Bible. It is divided into two volumes, the first containing 324 and the second 317 pages, each page consisting of two columns. The characters, which are Gothic, are large and handsome and very much resemble manuscript. Before the discovery of this Bi-be the so called Bamberg Bible of Pfister was generally regarded as the first printed book, but that honor is now universally accorded to the former work.

According to Dr. Austin Allibone, there are six known copies of the Mazarin Bible on vellum, one of which is the volume found in the Mazarin library. The copies on vellum, however, are later than the copies on paper, 21 of which are known to be in existence. There is a vellum copy of the Bible in the British museum and a paper copy in the Lenox library of this city. The present value of a perfect copy of the Mazarin Bible on paper is about $15,000, and those on vellum are valued at about $20,000. Practically, however, their value is a variable quantity, depending on what the book collectors are willing to give for them. It has long been a matter of dispute whether the types employed in printing this Bible were metallic or wooden, but the question is still undecided. As a specimen of early printing the work is magnificent, containing richly embellished capitals in blue, red and purple.—New York Tribune.

A SMUGGLER'S TRICK.

He Carried His Wares Openly, Yet Fooled the Customs Officials.

"All this talk about smuggling recalls some of the things I learned when I was in the service," announced a retired crook catcher the other day. "New ways of beating the government are being devised right along, and many of the tricks I discovered are old now. There used to be more trouble with the diamond smugglers than there appears to be at present. I have found the sparklers in women's back hair, bat ornaments, hollowed shoe heels and sewed up in various articles of wear, in dog collars, in horses' hoofs, in fruits and vegetables, in trunks with false bottoms, in pipes and cigars, in canes, on the necks of carrier pigeons and even buried in men's flesh after the manner of the Kaffir diamond thieves.

"But the man who did the slickest business without ever being suspected told me about it afterward. He was a retired detective who had served with great credit. Shortly before resigning he claimed to have received a beautiful diamond ring with three very large stones from a New Yorker for whom he had been able to save a good deal of money. It was certainly a magnificent ring, and the matter was duly exploited in the papers. He professed to be doing a private business that took him across the river frequently, and he would often use the ferry three or four times a day. He always wore the dazzling ring, and I looked at it every day for months. Yet that fellow was making big money smuggling diamonds.

"How? Why, he had a paste ring made exactly like the genuine one. He would wear the paste one over, leave it to be set with diamonds, wear them back, have them replaced with paste and thus carry on the game right before our admiring eyes. We never suspected the rascal."—Detroit Free Press.

A Great Shot.

The Duke of Malakhoff was at a bat-tue at Strathfieldsaye and shot nothing, much to his disgust, and when the day was over it appeared that he would be extremely put out unless he was allowed or enabled to kill something. So in spite of all the gamekeeper could think, feel or say a pheasant was procured, tied by its leg to the top of a post, and Malakhoff was put some 30 yards off with a double barreled gun. It was supposed that he would thereupon and thence take two shots at the bird. Not a bit of it. He loaded both barrels, walked close up to the pheasant, put the muzzle close to him and discharged both barrels into him, with "He! co-quin." The next day the Duke of Wellington told the keeper that Malakhoff was a great man who had smoked to death 500 Arab men, women and children in a cave, to which the gamekeeper replied: "Like enough, your grace. He'd be capable of anything."—"Letters of Lord Blackford."

Business Section Burned.

MEDORA, Ills., Oct. 7.—A fire that broke out in the rear of Robing's hardware store destroyed that building and 17 others adjoining, practically wiping out the business portion of the town and causing an estimated loss of $100,000; insurance one-half.

Sir Robert Cary rode nearly 300 miles in less than three days when he went from London to Edinburgh to inform King James of the death of Queen Elizabeth.

A Great Shot.

The Duke of Malakoff was at a battle at Strathfieldsaye and shot nothing, much to his disgust, and when the day was over it appeared that he would be extremely put out unless he was allowed or enabled to kill something. So in spite of all the gamekeeper could think, feel or say a pheasant was procured, tied by its leg to the top of a post, and Malakoff was put some 30 yards off with a double barreled gun. It was supposed that he would thereupon and thence take two shots at the bird. Not a bit of it. He loaded both barrels, walked close up to the pheasant, put the muzzle close to him and discharged both barrels into him, with "Hel coquin." The next day the Duke of Wellington told the keeper that Malakoff was a great man who had smoked to death 500 Arab men, women and children in a cave, to which the gamekeeper replied: "Like enough, your grace. He'd be capable of anything."—"Letters of Lord Blackford."

Business Section Burned.

MEDORA, Ills., Oct. 7.—A fire that broke out in the rear of Robing's hardware store destroyed that building and 17 others adjoining, practically wiping out the business portion of the town and causing an estimated loss of $100,000; insurance one-half.

Sir Robert Cary rode nearly 300 miles in less than three days when he went from London to Edinburgh to inform King James of the death of Queen Elizabeth.

MR. NORRIS HAS A SIDE

He Will Not Resign Without a Struggle.

ONE ELDER IS VERY SORRY

He Signed the Petition Which Asked the Minister to Leave—Did Not Know It Was to Go to Presbytery—The Pastor Objects to the Hour.

"Some new developments have arisen in the case of Rev. J. H. Norris that promise to make it exceedingly interesting when the committee appointed by presbytery begins its investigation into the matter," says today's Pittsburg Times. "The alleged trouble is said to be due solely to Mr. Norris's preaching the doctrine of perfect sanctification. The petition signed by a number of the elders and trustees of the church asking Mr. Norris to resign as their pastor without giving any reason was not presented to him until between 10:30 and 11 o'clock Monday night, the night immediately preceding the meeting of presbytery.

"Mr. Norris says that he then told the committee which presented the paper at such a late hour that he would decline to resign, as it was not a personal matter, but one of the doctrine only, and that if he had been guilty of teaching any doctrines contrary to the Scriptures it was the committee's duty to file charges against him and let the presbytery acquit or condemn him. He advised the committee to make such charges if it desired, but this it declined to do, and the matter thus went to presbytery.

"William Ablett, the elder whose name heads the list signed to the petition, called on Mr. Norris last evening and told him that when he signed the paper he did not know that it would be taken to presbytery, but expected the session to hold a conference with the pastor before any action would be taken.

"A larger congregation than usual attended the regular mid-week prayer meeting at the church last night, and many members gave the pastor expressions of warmest sympathy and encouragement. No open reference was made by Mr. Norris to the trouble, but as he read and commented on Paul's trials and persecutions for truth's sake everyone present felt the direct local application of the lesson.

SIX CENTS A QUART

Will Likely Be the Price of Milk Very Soon.

There is some talk in the city of organizing a company to sell milk at the rate of six cents per quart.

The parties who are interested in the plan hold that eight cents a quart is an outrageous price for milk, when it costs but ten cents a gallon. In Wellsville it sells for six cents in winter and five cents in summer, and it is argued that it should not cost more than that sum here.

If the company is formed they will purchase their milk from a large dairy and will fit up a number of wagons and retail the fluid at a not greater price than six cents a quart, and if possible it will be sold at five cents.

They will enter no combine, and expect the amount of business they will do will repay them for any reduction they make in price.

THE EIGHT HOUR DAY

Occupied the Attention of Trades Council.

CRUSADE WILL BEGIN MAY 1

Vice-President Carnahan Was Here Last Night, and Urged That the Movement Be Taken Up—Labor Day Was a Paying Investment.

The meeting of Trades council last evening was not largely attended, and but little business was transacted.

The Labor day committee made its final report and showed a balance of $559.26. The report was accepted, and the subject of incorporating Trades council was thoroughly discussed. It resulted in postponing the matter indefinitely.

The label of the union bakers was accepted, and the eight hour day was taken up and discussed. S. S. Canahan, of Akron, vice president of the Ohio Federation of Labor, was present, and made a lengthy address on the subject. This is the first time the matter was ever broached here, and it means the beginning of a struggle for shorter hours in East Liverpool. The matter will be kept before the local unions during the winter, and May 1, 1898, is the time set for all trades unions to commence the crusade.

THE LADIES' AUXILIARY.

This Helper of the Y. M. C. A. In Splendid Condition.

There was a nice turn out of the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Young Men's Christian association, at the regular meeting held yesterday. The first vice president handed in the names of three new applicants for membership. The physical culture classes, for the ladies, will meet on Tuesday and Thursday nights of next week, at 7 o'clock, and continue until further notice. Physical Director Morris will have charge. These classes have been conducive of much good, from a health standpoint, and many lady residents will be glad to learn that the exercises will be resumed.

There will be a social held in the auditorium rooms on next Friday evening week, Oct. 15. Ice cream and cake will be served. Take your lady friends and help the good cause along. The auxiliary will have charge of affairs.

The auxiliary is in splendid working order, and the members thereof feel confident that, backed by a generous public, as they have ever been in the past, they can accomplish much in favor of the parent branch. Put your shoulder to the wheel and help the cause along.

A membership in the Ladies' Auxiliary costs but the small sum of one dollar per year, this small sum entitling you to all the benefits of the physical culture class.

The Future of the Red Man.

Having briefly reviewed some of our past history, the fact must be admitted that when the white men first visited our shores we were kind and confiding, standing before them like a block of marble before the sculptor, ready to be shaped into noble manhood. Instead of this, we were oftener hacked to pieces and destroyed.

It is useless to deny the charge that at times we have been goaded to vindictive and cruel acts. Some of my own tribe, however, were soldiers in the northern army during the civil war. Some of them were taken and held prisoners in the rebel prisons, and the cruelty which, according to the tales they tell, was witnessed there was never outdone in border warfare with the scalping knife and tomahawk, and yet I believe that had the northern people been placed in the south under like circumstances their prisoners of war would have been treated with similar cruelty. It was the result of a desperate effort to save an expiring cause. I believe there is no reasonable person, well grounded in United States history, who will not admit that there were ten times as many who perished miserably in southern prisons as have been killed by our people since the discovery of America. I recall these facts not to censure, but to show that cruelty and revenge are the offspring of war, not of race, and that nature has placed no impassable gulf between us and civilization.

While I most heartily indorse the present policy of the government in dealing with our people, I must admit, to be true to my own convictions, that I am worried over the ration system, under which so many of our people are being fed on the reservations. I greatly fear it may eventually vago-bondize many of them beyond redemption. It permits the gathering of lazy, immoral white men of the worst stamp, who spend their time in idleness and in corrupting Indian morality.—Simon Pokagon in Forum.

Good Goods and Fair Dealing Tells the Story.

Every fair-minded citizen is glad to know of the success of a local business man or merchant, especially when that business man deserves success. G. Bendheim & Co., are ranked with this class, and we are very glad to note that the ever increasing business of this popular house has compelled enlargement. Bendheim has had the basement of his fine shoe house snugly and neatly fitted up, and the overflow of his superb stock has been placed upon the shelving thereof, ready for the inspection of eager patrons. Of a truth, good goods, reasonable prices and fair dealing tell the story of our townsman's success.

The Rev. Walter Colton, author of "Ship and Shore" and other books, gave a most forcible illustration of the character of an officer on board the ship to which he was attached as chaplain.

The officer was always meddling with other people's business and was seldom in his own place. Consequently he was most unpopular with the sailors.

One of them, goaded to unusual irritation, said one day, "I do believe that at the general resurrection the lieutenant will be found getting out of somebody else's grave."

ORDINANCE NO. 532.

AN ORDINANCE TO REGULATE THE removal of any building over or upon any of the streets, alleys or other public grounds of said city.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the council of the city of East Liverpool, two-thirds of all the members thereto elected concurring, that no person or persons shall remove or cause to be removed on, along or across any street, alley or public way within said city, any dwelling house, business house, barn, stable or other structure, without having first obtained from the city clerk a written permit so to do.

SECTION 2. Upon applying for such permit and before the same shall be issued, the person or persons seeking the same shall file, in the office of the city clerk, a bond in the sum of five hundred dollars, payable to the city of East Liverpool, for the use of the party injured, and with sufficient sureties to be approved by the city clerk, conditioned that said person or persons shall fully repair any and all damage done to said street or other city or private property by the removal of said building, and shall save and keep harmless the said city from any expense, loss or damage that it may sustain by reason of said building. The person or persons receiving said permit shall exercise the same, subject to all other grants and franchises granted to others by any ordinance or resolution of council.

SECTION 3. No person or persons removing such building shall permit the same to remain on any particular block on any street, alley or public way for a longer period than three days, and a good and sufficient passage way for one vehicle shall at all times be provided on one side of said building.

SECTION 4. Any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be fined not less than fifty dollars, and not more than one hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution for each offense.

SECTION 5. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

SECTION 6. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and legal publication.

The physical culture classes, for the ladies, will meet on Tuesday and Thursday nights of next week, at 7 o'clock, and continue until further notice. Physical Director Morris will have charge. These classes have been conducive of much good, from a health standpoint, and many lady residents will be glad to learn that the exercises will be resumed.

There will be a social held in the auditorium rooms on next Friday evening week, Oct. 15. Ice cream and cake will be served. Take your lady friends and help the good cause along. The auxiliary will have charge of affairs.

The auxiliary is in splendid working order, and the members thereof feel confident that, backed by a generous public, as they have ever been in the past, they can accomplish much in favor of the parent branch. Put your shoulder to the wheel and help the cause along.

A membership in the Ladies' Auxiliary costs but the small sum of one dollar per year, this small sum entitling you to all the benefits of the physical culture class.

The Future of the Red Man.

Having briefly reviewed some of our past history, the fact must be admitted that when the white men first visited our shores we were kind and confiding, standing before them like a block of marble before the sculptor, ready to be shaped into noble manhood. Instead of this, we were oftener hacked to pieces and destroyed.

It is useless to deny the charge that at times we have been goaded to vindictive and cruel acts. Some of my own tribe, however, were soldiers in the northern army during the civil war. Some of them were taken and held prisoners in the rebel prisons, and the cruelty which, according to the tales they tell, was witnessed there was never outdone in border warfare with the scalping knife and tomahawk, and yet I believe that had the northern people been placed in the south under like circumstances their prisoners of war would have been treated with similar cruelty. It was the result of a desperate effort to save an expiring cause. I believe there is no reasonable person, well grounded in United States history, who will not admit that there were ten times as many who perished miserably in southern prisons as have been killed by our people since the discovery of America. I recall these facts not to censure, but to show that cruelty and revenge are the offspring of war, not of race, and that nature has placed no impassable gulf between us and civilization.

While I most heartily indorse the present policy of the government in dealing with our people, I must admit, to be true to my own convictions, that I am worried over the ration system, under which so many of our people are being fed on the reservations. I greatly fear it may eventually vagabondize many of them beyond redemption. It permits the gathering of lazy, immoral white men of the worst stamp, who spend their time in idleness and in corrupting Indian morality.—Simon Pokagon in Forum.

Good Goods and Fair Dealing Tells the Story.

Every fair-minded citizen is glad to know of the success of a local business man or merchant, especially when that business man deserves success. G. Bendheim & Co., are ranked with this class, and we are very glad to note that the ever increasing business of this popular house has compelled enlargement. Bendheim has had the basement of his fine shoe house snugly and neatly fitted up, and the overflow of his superb stock has been placed upon the shelving thereof, ready for the inspection of eager patrons. Of a truth, good goods, reasonable prices and fair dealing tell the story of our townsmen's success.

Minerva Fair Excursions.

Oct. 5, 6, 7, 8, low rate excursion tickets will be sold to Minerva from Alliance, East Liverpool and intermediate ticket stations on Pennsylvania lines for Minerva fair; return coupons valid Saturday, Oct. 9, inclusive.

Buying Horses.

Frank Dickey, of East Market street, left this morning for a point near Columbus. He will purchase a number of working horses while there.

The heaviest bell in the world is that at Moscow, which weighs 432,000 pounds. That in city hall, New York, weighs 22,800 pounds.

Remenyi tonight. Think of such a treat for 25, 35 and 50 cents.

Just Like Him.

The Rev. Walter Colton, author of "Ship and Shore" and other books, gave a most forcible illustration of the character of an officer on board the ship to which he was attached as chaplain.

The officer was always meddling with other people's business and was seldom in his own place. Consequently he was most unpopular with the sailors.

One of them, goaded to unusual irritation, said one day, "I do believe that at the general resurrection the lieutenant will be found getting out of somebody else's grave."

ORDINANCE NO. 532.

A N ORDINANCE TO REGULATE THE removal of any building over or upon any of the streets, alleys or other public grounds of said city.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the council of the city of East Liverpool, two-thirds of all the members thereof, elected concurring, that no person nor persons shall remove or cause to be removed on, along or across any street, alley or public way within said city, any dwelling house, business house, barn, stable or other structure, without having first obtained from the city clerk a written permit so to do.

SECTION 2. Upon applying for such permit and before the same shall be issued, the person or persons seeking the same shall file, in the office of the city clerk, a bond in the sum of five hundred dollars, payable to the city of East Liverpool, for the use of the party injured, and with sufficient sureties to be approved by the city clerk, conditioned that said person or persons shall fully repair any and all damage done to said street or other city or private property by the removal of said building, and shall save and keep harmless the said city from any expense, loss or damage that it may sustain by reason of said building. The person or persons receiving said permit shall exercise the same, subject to all other grants and franchises granted to others by any ordinance or resolution of council.

SECTION 3. No person or persons removing such building shall permit the same to remain on any particular block on any street, alley or public way for a longer period than three days, and a good and sufficient passage way for one vehicle shall at all times be provided on one side of said building.

SECTION 4. Any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be fined not less than fifty dollars, and not more than one hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution for each offense.

SECTION 5. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

SECTION 6. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and legal publication.

FAIR BEHIND THE TIMES

Trenton Has Been Outstripped by Liverpool.

SOME FIRMS ARE PROGRESSIVE

But the Majority Are Still In the Rut Which Does Not Allow Successful Competition With Foreign Pottery—Orders Are Plentiful.

"Trenton is a nice town, and at one time it was the center of the potting industry in America, but even its best friends, after they have been in East Liverpool, would say that it is at least 10 years behind the times. The potters are in a rut."

The speaker was James L. Pope, the well known engraver, of this city. He had just returned from a month's stay in the east, much of the time being spent in Trenton.

"The town is not what it used to be," continued Mr. Pope, "and it must walk very rapidly indeed if it expects to catch up with Liverpool. Of course, there are a few concerns whose managers have kept pace with the times, but there are not many of them. They were hit hard when the panic came, but they apparently made no attempt to keep their heads above water, as did the manufacturers of the west, and we see the result now very plainly. East Liverpool has trade and so has Trenton, but the Jersey town's trade is not anything compared with ours. We make better goods and more of them. Our shapes are better, and they cannot reach us on decorations. Then there is not the push and spirit we have here. They seem to have been stricken by despondency years ago, and are still unable to recover their energies. Trade is picking up, and some of the more enterprising potteries have all they can do, but you don't find there the hustle and bustle you can see every day in the streets of Liverpool. From all appearances the glory of Trenton has departed, and the new star, more brilliant than Trenton ever shown, is Liverpool."

Only a Few More.

Saturday, Oct. 16, will be the closing day of the Pittsburg exposition. Only a few more excursions for that event will be run via the Pennsylvania lines.

The dates for the last regular Thursday excursions are Oct. 7 and 14. In addition to those excursions, special low rate tickets to Pittsburg will also be sold over Pennsylvania lines Oct. 16, from East Liverpool.

The Pittsburg Exposition of 1907 is unusually attractive. Special features are numerous, and every visitor is highly pleased. Brooke's famous Chicago Marine band, the band that plays popular airs, will be at the Expo until the evening of Oct. 9. The musical program until that date includes vocal selections by Miss Sybil Sammis, the wonderful soprano. During the week beginning Oct. 4, the wonderful educated horse, "Jim Key," will be one of the attractions. This remarkable horse writes, plays cards, tells fortunes and performs a great many marvelous things. Saturday, Oct. 9, will be Commercial Travelers' day, with a special program for the "jolly drummers."

Sousa and his famous band will furnish the music for the last week, commencing Oct. 11. It will be fine.

The very low rate at which the trip to the Expo may be made via Pennsylvania lines will enable people from this locality to see the interesting and instructive display, and enjoy the grand music and special attractions at small expense. For particulars apply to Adam Hill, ticket agent, East Liverpool.

G. A. R. POST OF PRIESTS.

The Only One of the Kind Organized In Indiana.

LAPORTE, Ind., Oct. 7.—A post of the Grand Army of the Republic, composed exclusively of priests of the Roman Catholic church, has been installed at Notre Dame by State Commander Dodge and full staff.

Notre Dame now enjoys the distinction of having the only post of the Grand Army of the Republic organized and officered by clerics of the Roman Catholic church in the world. The ceremonies of installation were impressive, and were witnessed by the most notable military and religious assemblages ever convened at the university.

The Very Rev. Father Corby, chaplain of the Eighty-eighth New York Volunteers, was installed as commander. Father Corby enjoys a national reputation as a prelate of the Catholic church, and during the late war gave absolution to his New York regiment on the battlefield at Gettysburg. General William A. Olmstead of New York city, who will soon be elevated to the priesthood, is adjutant of the post.

LONDON'S PAST PLEASURES.

How Its Inhabitants Amused Themselves a Century or Two Ago.

The Londoner in the long past might retire to Bagnigge Wells, near the present King's Cross, or Florida gardens, Brompton (Brompton was noted 100 years ago for its "salubrious air"), or the Marylebone gardens and Bowling Green, mentioned by Pepys as "a pretty place" so long ago as 1668, or the Bayswater Tea gardens, which flourished till after the middle of the present century, there to sit in a summer house overgrown with honeysuckle and sweetbrier, drinking tea, then held in much esteem as a fashionable beverage, and eating cheese cakes, "heart cakes," Chelsea buns, syllabubs, jellies, creams, hot loaves, rolls and butter, while a band performed a concerto by Corelli or the last new composition by Mr. Handel, "The Master of Musick," or a singer gave the last new song by Dr. Arne. Afterward his visitors might enjoy the privilege of drinking new milk from the cow and picking flowers and fruit, "fresh every hour in the day," a great attraction, doubtless, for Londoners at a period when fruit and flowers were neither so cheap nor so abundant in the metropolis as they are at present. Nor were more artificial amusements lacking. In addition to illuminations, fireworks and masquerades, attended by the world of fashion from princes downward, there were miscellaneous entertainments of every sort.

A high scaffolding was erected in Marylebone gardens in 1736 for a predecessor of Blonfin called "the flying man," who was advertised to fly down on a rope pushing a wheelbarrow before him. In May, 1785, Lunardi, the first aeronaut who went up in a balloon in England and was quaintly called "the first aerial traveler in English atmosphere" by contemporary prints, descended unexpectedly one afternoon in the Adam and Eve Tea gardens in the neighborhood of Tottenham Court road, then a resort of fashion, and was uproariously welcomed by the populace in acknowledgment of his flight. Later on aeronautic flights became a special feature of all these pleasure gardens. Ponds containing goldfish—a novelty in the middle of the eighteenth century—were reckoned as another of their special attractions and were advertised as "gold and silver fish, which afford pleasing ideas to every spectator."—Temple Bar.

Japanese English.

The Rev. Masazao Kagaren brought me a present of a tin of native preserved apricots put up at Nagano, bearing the inscription, "This apricots is very sweetest." Another tin—I think it was a sort of Japanese "Liebig"—was still more remarkably inscribed: "All the medicines of our company used to sell are not only manufactured of the pure and good material, but also, unless the article are inspected by the superintendent, they not sealed. It is true that their quality is best. If there was suspicion about it, trust on official examination. If even in the slightest neglect the result is not good, our company should be responsible for it. Beware the trademark, sealing wax and wrapper of our company." In this connection I may remark on the curious signs in English (?) composed in cheerful independence of outside help. I have seen the equivalent of the English "mangling done here" rendered "the machine for smoothing the wrinkles in the trousers" and "Washman, ladies only," "Clothing of woman tailor, ladies furnished in upper story," "Instructed by the French horse leech," (this adorned the door of a veterinary surgeon and referred to the tuition under which the gentleman was trained).—From "Mountaineering In the Japanese Alps," by Rev. Walter Weston.

Just Do It.

MARRIAGE OF CONSUL PETTIT.

Wedded to Miss Winnie Barr, at Canton—Soon to Sail For Europe.

CANTON, Oct. 7.—At the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. P. H. Barr, last evening, Mr. George P. Pettit of Pittsburg and Miss Winnie Barr were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Hall of Trinity Lutheran church, in the presence of the families of the contracting parties, a number of guests from out of the city and a few friends from the most prominent social sets of the city. The bridesmaids were Miss Minnie Barr, the bride's sister, and Miss Jane Hammond of Lebanon, Pa. Mr. Austin Beach of Pittsburg and Mr. Fred Barr of this city were the ushers.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Pettit boarded an eastbound Pennsylvania train. They go to New York and eastern cities for a short bridal tour before sailing for Europe, where Mr. Pettit goes as consul to Dusseldorf. Mr. Pettit, before going to Pittsburg as a newspaper man, was engaged in similar work in Canton and is well known and popular here. Miss Barr is one of the most popular society women of the city.

Sixty Crusaders Attended.

NEWARK, O., Oct. 7.—At the twenty-fourth annual state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union nearly all of the delegates are present. During the morning session all old Crusaders present were asked to make the fact known, and 60 ladies identified in the movement of 24 years ago, which was the foundation of the order, stood up. State Treasurer Miss Emily L. Goodwell of Canton submitted her report for the year. Receipts, $2,716.47; disbursements, $2,848.50, leaving a deficit of $132.03.

Robbers Scared Away.

AKRON, Oct. 7.—John Allensworth, watchman at the India Rubber company's works, was seized, bound and gagged by three men, who then attempted to get through a window in the office, but a burglar alarm went off, and the noise, together with Allensworth's cries, frightened them away. The watchman had succeeded in removing the gag before the assailants could get in the window.

An Ohio Editor In Luck.

SALEM, Oct. 7.—Hon. J. J. LONDON'S PAST PLEASURES.

How Its Inhabitants Amused Themselves a Century or Two Ago.

The Londoner in the long past might retire to Bagnigge Wells, near the present King's Cross, or Florida gardens, Brompton (Brompton was noted 100 years ago for its "salubrious air"), or the Marylebone gardens and Bowling Green, mentioned by Pepys as "a pretty place" so long ago as 1668, or the Bayswater Tea gardens, which flourished till after the middle of the present century, there to sit in a summer house overgrown with honeysuckle and sweetbrier, drinking tea, then held in much esteem as a fashionable beverage, and eating cheese cakes, "heart cakes," Chelsea buns, syllabubs, jellies, creams, hot loaves, rolls and butter, while a band performed a concerto by Corelli or the last new composition by Mr. Handel, "The Master of Musick," or a singer gave the last new song by Dr. Arne. Afterward his visitors might enjoy the privilege of drinking new milk from the cow and picking flowers and fruit, "fresh every hour in the day," a great attraction, doubtless, for Londoners at a period when fruit and flowers were neither so cheap nor so abundant in the metropolis as they are at present. Nor were more artificial amusements lacking. In addition to illuminations, fireworks and masquerades, attended by the world of fashion from princes downward, there were miscellaneous entertainments of every sort.

A high scaffolding was erected in Marylebone gardens in 1736 for a predecessor of Blondin called "the flying man," who was advertised to fly down on a rope pushing a wheelbarrow before him. In May, 1785, Lunardi, the first aeronaut who went up in a balloon in England and was quaintly called "the first aerial traveler in English atmosphere" by contemporary prints, descended unexpectedly one afternoon in the Adam and Eve Tea gardens in the neighborhood of Tottenham Court road, then a resort of fashion, and was uproariously welcomed by the populace in acknowledgment of his flight. Later on aeronautic flights became a special feature of all these pleasure gardens. Ponds containing goldfish—a novelty in the middle of the eighteenth century—were reckoned as another of their special attractions and were advertised as "gold and silver fish, which afford pleasing ideas to every spectator."—Temple Bar.

Japanese English.

The Rev. Masazao Kagaren brought me a present of a tin of native preserved apricots put up at Nagano, bearing the inscription, "This apricot is very sweetest."

Another tin—"I think it was a sort of Japanese "Liebig"—was still more remarkably inscribed: "All the medicines of our company used to sell are not only manufactured of the pure and good material, but also, unless the article are inspected by the superintendent, they not sealed. It is true that their quality is best. If there was suspicion about it, trust on official examination. If even in the slightest neglect the result is not good, our company should be responsible for it. Beware the trademark, sealing wax and wrapper of our company." In this connection I may remark on the curious signs in English (?) composed in cheerful independence of outside help. I have seen the equivalent of the English "mangling done here" rendered "the machine for smoothing the wrinkles in the trousers" and "Washman, ladies only."

"Clothing of woman tailor, ladies furnished in upper story," "Instructed by the French horse leech," (this adorned the door of a veterinary surgeon and referred to the tuition under which the gentleman was trained).—From "Mountaineering in the Japanese Alps," by Rev. Walter Weston.

Just Do It.

MARRIAGE OF CONSUL PETTIT.

Wedded to Miss Winnie Barr, at Canton—Soon to Sail For Europe.

CANTON, Oct. 7.—At the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. P. H. Barr, last evening, Mr. George P. Pettit of Pittsburg and Miss Winnie Barr were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Hall of Trinity Lutheran church, in the presence of the families of the contracting parties, a number of guests from out of the city and a few friends from the most prominent social sets of the city. The bridesmaids were Miss Minnie Barr, the bride's sister, and Miss Jane Hammond of Lebanon, Pa. Mr. Austin Beach of Pittsburg and Mr. Fred Barr of this city were the ushers.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Pettit boarded an eastbound Pennsylvania train. They go to New York and eastern cities for a short bridal tour before sailing for Europe, where Mr. Pettit goes as consul to Dusseldorf. Mr. Pettit, before going to Pittsburg as a newspaper man, was engaged in similar work in Canton and is well known and popular here. Miss Barr is one of the most popular society women of the city.

Sixty Crusaders Attended.

NEWARK, O., Oct. 7.—At the twenty-fourth annual state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union nearly all of the delegates are present. During the morning session all old Crusaders present were asked to make the fact known, and 60 ladies identified in the movement of 24 years ago, which was the foundation of the older, stood up. State Treasurer Miss Emily L. Goodwell of Canton submitted her report for the year. Receipts, $2,716.47; disbursements, $2,848.50, leaving a deficit of $132.03.

Robbers Scared Away.

AKRON, Oct. 7.—John Allensworth, watchman at the India Rubber company's works, was seized, bound and gagged by three men, who then attempted to get through a window in the office, but a burglar alarm went off, and the noise, together with Allensworth's cries, frightened them away. The watchman had succeeded in removing the gag before the assailants could get in the window.

THE DRUMMERS OBJECT

To the New One Thousand-Mile Book.

THEIR CHARACTER IS TOUCHED

When the Passenger Association Declares That Any But the Original Owner of a Book Is Not Its Lawful Owner—Will Fight It In the Legislature.

A great many people in this city will be interested in knowing that the commercial travelers are up in arms against the railroads because of the new thousand-mile book, and will fight it in the legislatures of a number of states if it is not withdrawn.

A number of parties have received copies of resolutions adopted by the Pittsburgh branch of the Commercial Travelers' Protective association. They cover the ground completely, and show just what the salesmen think of the matter. Several members of the association reside in this city.

The resolutions commend the railroads for the scope of the new mileage book, but denounce the arbitrary rules accompanying the ticket, requesting the Central Passenger association to immediately withdraw the objectionable conditions and give them the book which sold at $20 and allowed them to check their baggage.

They look upon the instructions issued to railroad men, "that the holder of a mileage book other than the original purchaser is the unlawful owner," as an insult to every person who has come honestly by a ticket. They object to being branded as thieves for having that which the supreme court has declared is the property of the holder, notwithstanding the one-sided contract signed by the purchaser.

Perhaps the strongest resolution is the following:

"Resolved, That if the Central Passenger association refuse our reasonable demand for the 1,000-mile book, minus the objectionable features, this association shall assist in bringing together the commercial travelers' associations in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, so that a concerted effort may be made to introduce a bill, and procure its passage in the legislature of each of the states named, to have a two-cent legal rate on all steam railroads in these five states, which constitute mainly the territory of the Central Passenger association."

Charles H. Kelly, a well-known Republican of Allegheny, is secretary of the association, and his name is signed to the document.

Excursions to Pittsburgh.

Excursion tickets to Pittsburgh will be sold Thursdays, Sept. 9, 16, 23 and 30. Oct. 7 and 14, from Erie, Ashtabula, Massillon, New Philadelphia, Bellaire, Wheeling, Dennison, Washington, Cadiz, New Cumberland and intermediate ticket stations on the Pennsylvania Lines. The rate will be one fare for round trip, plus 25 cents, which covers admission coupon to the Exposition. Tickets will be sold for regular trains on dates specified, and will be good returning three days, including day of sale. For rates, tickets, time of trains and special information, apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent.

SPOT THEM.

Unionists of East Liverpool, spot the politicians who are catering to East Liverpool non-union institutions. No true unionist will dare vote for such a man. Use your ballots in favor of your friends and union principle.

UNIONIST.

Excursion to Pittsburgh. Oct. 10, 17, 24, 31, special low rate tickets will be sold to Pittsburgh good for round trip. Leave Wellsville 7:05 a. m., Smith's Ferry 7:20 a. m., central time. One dollar round trip from these stations. Returning special train leaves Pittsburgh 5:30 p. m., Allegheny 5:37 p. m., central time. Hear to see the beauties of the prettiest park and varied attractions of Pittsburgh.

Do Not Move On. Complaints are made because the police pay no attention to the ordinance passed in the hope that the street corner long time since anyone was ordered to move on.

The large machine at the light plant, that was used at the Columbian exposition, was overhauled today. Several improvements were added, and the machine is better than ever.

THE BIGGEST CONGRESSMAN

One of New Hampshire's Representatives Is a Physical Giant.

Mr. Sulloway of New Hampshire is the giant of congress in physical stature. He is almost 7 feet tall, and since the retirement of General Newton M. Curtis of New York has no rival to the claim of being the biggest man in congress.

Attention is attracted to him not only on account of his unusual height, but by the manner of his dress and his mode of wearing his hair and beard. He always wears a long skirted, dark blue coat with a velvet collar, a low cut vest, exposing a wide expanse of shirt front, and he has not yet taken to the fashion of wearing shoes, but finds comfort in old fashioned, long topped boots. He is continually in need of a hair cut. His long locks, which are carefully brushed, straggle down over the velvet collar of his coat much after the style of old time southern statesmen or the Buffalo Bill type of westerners. He wears a full beard, which is not always trimmed as neatly as fashion would prescribe.

Mr. Sulloway's record is about as unique as his personal appearance. He is known as the "Salvation Army congressman." It is related of him that some years ago he was an unbeliever, but having been retained by a Salvation Army captain to defend a little company of these evangelists against a charge of disorderly conduct in parading the streets of Manchester he became impressed with their faith, was converted and finally married a Salvation Army lassie.—Philadelphia Press.

MINES ALL THE WAY.

Interesting Prophecy of an Expert In Geological Matters.

Clarence King, formerly chief of the United States geological survey, said the other day: "The time is not far distant when men will start out of Denver and travel to Klondike, stopping every night at a mining camp. Already two American stamp mills are pounding away on the borders of the strait of Magellan, and the day is approaching when a chain of mining camps will extend from Cape Horn to St. Michael's. "I believe we are about to enter upon a century which will open up vast resources and will be the grandest the earth has ever known. Before the end of the twentieth century the traveler will enter a sleeping car at Chicago bound via Bering strait for St. Petersburg, and the dream of Governor Gilpin will be realized."

BURIED HIS MONEY.

How a Husband Tried to Avoid the Payment of Alimony.

Conrad May, defendant in a divorce suit at Dubuque, Ia., confessed the other day to the referee appointed by the court to discover the whereabouts of his property that he buried two pots of gold valued at $6,000 on a farm in Wisconsin to escape an execution for the temporary alimony which the court had allowed his wife.

May was arrested some days ago on a warrant charging that he was about to leave the jurisdiction to escape payment of the alimony. He was brought before Judge O'Donnell, and, rather than remain in jail for contempt or reveal the exact hiding spot of his treasure, he proposed to "dig up" enough to pay the alimony. The proposition was accepted.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Speech by a Centenarian.

The old settlers of Jay county, Ind., held their annual meeting in Thomas Ankrom's grove, four miles west of Portland, recently.

A feature of the meeting was a short talk by William Sloane Green, Indiana's famous old man, who will be 110 years old in November. Though very feeble, Mr. Green is bright mentally and made an entertaining address, speaking of early happenings about which none of those present knew a thing except from history and hearsay. Mr. Green was born in Pennsylvania and was a soldier in the war of 1812.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Huge Undertaking.

Johannes Penzier has begun the formidable task of bringing into book form all the dispatches, letters and interviews of Prince Bismarck since his dismissal, together with the more important newspaper articles supposed to be inspired by him. The first volume of his work, 384 pages, has already appeared under the title of "Fuerst Bismarck Nach Seiner Entlassung."

PERSONAL POINTS.

Mrs. Richard Milliken of New Orleans has given $75,000 to found a children's hospital in that city.

General Sir Bindon Blood, in command of the British army on the northwestern frontier, is an Irishman, 55 years old.

Georges, the coachman who heroically aided in saving life at the burning of the Bazaar de la Charite, in Paris, has been decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor.

The notorious anti-Semite Deputy Ahlwardt, who visited this country last year, has opened a small cigar shop in Berlin.

Klondyke

The Land of Golden Nuggets.

JOSEPH LADUE,

the new Bonanza King of the Klondyke Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights," BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered last August, 1896. He located one rich claim and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nuggets, beyond the dream of avarice. Joseph Ladue then at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots 150x50 are now selling for $5,000 each.

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuler Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek his fortune in the west going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific coast and finally located in Alaska and the northwest, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer: strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpaired at about the age of 43. Mr. Ladue has not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods, far beyond the dreams of men, but he has evidently all this time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country—the Yukon Valley—which has so suddenly become one of the great centers upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that under the most most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space) people began to wonder and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well informed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man today alive who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it specially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desultory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights, year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and its tributaries.

In presenting his book to the public we do so knowing that it is by an authority on the subject of which he writes. His first work entitled is a brief description of the new gold regions, and anyone desiring authentic information should not fail to avail themselves of our

which places the facts in the possession of our readers. REMEMBER, that our office is the sole distributing point for this locality, having closed exclusive arrangements with Mr. Ladue's publishers.

NEWS REVIEW.

THE DRUMMERS OBJECT

To the New One Thousand-Mile Book.

THEIR CHARACTER IS TOUCHED

When the Passenger Association Declares That Any But the Original Owner of a Book Is Not Its Lawful Owner—Will Fight It In the Legislature.

A great many people in this city will be interested in knowing that the commercial travelers are up in arms against the railroads because of the new thousand-mile book, and will fight it in the legislatures of a number of states if it is not withdrawn.

A number of parties have received copies of resolutions adopted by the Pittsburgh branch of the Commercial Travelers' Protective association. They cover the ground completely, and show just what the salesmen think of the matter. Several members of the association reside in this city.

The resolutions commend the railroads for the scope of the new mileage book, but denounce the arbitrary rules accompanying the ticket, requesting the Central Passenger association to immediately withdraw the objectionable conditions and give them the book which sold at $20 and allowed them to check their baggage.

They look upon the instructions issued to railroad men, "that the holder of a mileage book other than the original purchaser is the unlawful owner," as an insult to every person who has come honestly by a ticket. They object to being branded as thieves for having that which the supreme court has declared is the property of the holder, notwithstanding the one-sided contract signed by the purchaser.

Perhaps the strongest resolution is the following:

"Resolved, That if the Central Passenger association refuse our reasonable demand for the 1,000-mile book, minus the objectionable features, this association shall assist in bringing together the commercial travelers' associations in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, so that a concerted effort may be made to introduce a bill, and procure its passage in the legislature of each of the states named, to have a two-cent legal rate on all steam railroads in these five states, which constitute mainly the territory of the Central Passenger association."

Charles H. Kelly, a well-known Republican of Allegheny, is secretary of the association, and his name is signed to the document.

Excursions to Pittsburgh.

Excursion tickets to Pittsburgh will be sold Thursdays, Sept. 9, 16, 23 and 30, Oct. 7 and 14, from Erie, Ashtabula, Massillon, New Philadelphia, Bellaire, Wheeling, Dennison, Washington, Cadiz, New Cumberland and intermediate ticket stations on the Pennsylvania Lines. The rate will be one fare for round trip, plus 25 cents, which covers admission coupon to the Exposition. Tickets will be sold for regular trains on dates specified, and will be good returning three days, including day of sale. For rates, tickets, time of trains and special information, apply to nearest Pennsylvania Line Ticket Agent.

SPOT THEM.

Unionists of East Liverpool, spot the politicians who are catering to East Liverpool non-union institutions. No true unionist will vote for such a man. Use your ballots in favor of your friends and union principle.

Complain to the police because the ordinance passed in the hope that street corner loafing could be killed. It has been a long time since anyone was ordered to move on.

The large machine at the light plant, that was used at the Columbian exposition, was overhauled today. Several improvements were added, and the machine is better than ever.

THE BIGGEST CONGRESSMAN

One of New Hampshire's Representatives Is a Physical Giant.

Mr. Sulloway of New Hampshire is the giant of congress in physical stature. He is almost 7 feet tall, and since the retirement of General Newton M. Curtis of New York has no rival to the claim of being the biggest man in congress.

Attention is attracted to him not only on account of his unusual height, but by the manner of his dress and his mode of wearing his hair and beard. He always wears a long skirted, dark blue coat with a velvet collar, a low cut vest, exposing a wide expanse of shirt front, and he has not yet taken to the fashion of wearing shoes, but finds comfort in old fashioned, long topped boots. He is continually in need of a hair cut. His long locks, which are carefully brushed, straggle down over the velvet collar of his coat much after the style of old time southern statesmen or the Buffalo Bill type of westerners. He wears a full beard, which is not always trimmed as neatly as fashion would prescribe.

Mr. Sulloway's record is about as unique as his personal appearance. He is known as the "Salvation Army congressman." It is related of him that some years ago he was an unbeliever, but having been retained by a Salvation Army captain to defend a little company of these evangelists against a charge of disorderly conduct in parading the streets of Manchester he became impressed with their faith, was converted and finally married a Salvation Army lassie.—Philadelphia Press.

MINES ALL THE WAY.

Interesting Prophecy of an Expert In Geological Matters.

Clarence King, formerly chief of the United States geological survey, said the other day: "The time is not far distant when men will start out of Denver and travel to Klondike, stopping every night at a mining camp. Already two American stamp mills are pounding away on the borders of the strait of Magellan, and the day is approaching when a chain of mining camps will extend from Cape Horn to St. Michael's."

"I believe we are about to enter upon a century which will open up vast resources and will be the grandest the earth has ever known. Before the end of the twentieth century the traveler will enter a sleeping car at Chicago bound via Bering strait for St. Petersburg, and the dream of Governor Gilpin will be realized."

BURIED HIS MONEY.

How a Husband Tried to Avoid the Payment of Alimony.

Conrad May, defendant in a divorce suit at Dubuque, Ia., confessed the other day to the referee appointed by the court to discover the whereabouts of his property that he buried two pots of gold valued at $6,000 on a farm in Wisconsin to escape an execution for the temporary alimony which the court had allowed his wife.

May was arrested some days ago on a warrant charging that he was about to leave the jurisdiction to escape payment of the alimony. He was brought before Judge O'Donnell, and, rather than remain in jail for contempt or reveal the exact hiding spot of his treasure, he proposed to "dig up" enough to pay the alimony. The proposition was accepted.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Speech by a Centenarian.

The old settlers of Jay county, Ind., held their annual meeting in Thomas Ankrom's grove, four miles west of Portland, recently.

A feature of the meeting was a short talk by William Sloane Green, Indiana's famous old man, who will be 110 years old in November. Though very feeble, Mr. Green is bright mentally and made an entertaining address, speaking of early happenings about which none of those present knew a thing except from history and hearsay. Mr. Green was born in Pennsylvania and was a soldier in the war of 1812.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Huge Undertaking.

Johannes Penzler has begun the formidable task of bringing into book form all the dispatches, letters and interviews of Prince Bismarck since his dismissal, together with the more important newspaper articles supposed to be inspired by him. The first volume of his work, 384 pages, has already appeared under the title of "Fuerst Bismarck Nach Seiner Entlassung."

PERSONAL POINTS.

Mrs. Richard Milliken of New Orleans has given $75,000 to found a children's hospital in that city.

General Sir Bindon Blood, in command of the British army on the northwestern frontier, is an Irishman, 55 years old.

Georges, the coachman who heroically aided in saving life at the burning of the Bazaar de la Charite, in Paris, has been decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor.

The notorious anti-Semite Deputy Ahlwardt, who visited this country last year, has opened a small cigar shop in Berlin.

Klondyke

The Land of Golden Nuggets.

JOSEPH LADUE,

the new Bonanza King of the Klondyke Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights," BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered last August, 1896. He located one rich claim and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nuggets, beyond the dream of avarice. Joseph Ladue then at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots 150x50 are now selling for $5,000 each.

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuler Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek his fortune in the west going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific coast and finally located in Alaska and the northwest, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer: strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpaired at about the age of 43. Mr. Ladue has not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods, far beyond the dreams of men, but he has evidently all this time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country—the Yukon Valley—which has so suddenly become one of the great centers upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that under the most most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space) people began to wonder and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well informed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man today alive who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it especially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desultory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights, year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and its tributaries.

In presenting his book to the public we do so knowing that it is by an authority on the subject of which he writes. His first work entitled

is a brief description of the new gold regions, and anyone desiring authentic information should not fail to avail themselves of our

which places the facts in the possession of our readers. REMEMBER, that our office is the sole distributing point for this locality, having closed exclusive arrangements with Mr. Ladue's publishers.

The cover of the work is beautifully printed in red and gold, the gold showing one of the author's nuggets as nearly as it is possible to reproduce it on paper.
